College Must Raise $4 Million More Within Next Three Years

A $2 million grant was made a $20,000 Public Affairs Grant to Lawrence College today by the joint research between the Ford Foundation, on condition that the college raises $4 million within three years.

The largest single sum ever given to Lawrence, it also will require the largest fund-raising effort in the institution's history. The Ford Foundation's $2 million, plus the $4 million required of the college in matching funds, will account for nearly half of the $12½ million announced in May as a target in Lawrence's Ten Year Plan.

Although the grant will not actually be the college's until the matching funds are raised, the Foundation will give each recipient an immediate payment as an act of faith, to help with urgent needs. Lawrence's immediate payment is $500,000 which next year will be used in this way: $200,000 to complete the addition to Carnegie Library; $200,000 to begin a men's dormitory which will be completed by a government loan; and $100,000 to raise faculty and staff salaries.

Three Gifts
The Ford Foundation has made three major gifts to Lawrence in the past. In 1955 it gave $534,500 for the raising of faculty salaries; during the years 1951-55 it underwrote a year's leave of absence for nine faculty members through the Fund for the Advancement of Education; and in 1959 it gave

Woman Denies Hit-Run Guilt

Suburban Milwaukee Resident Gives Up After Rabe Death

A suburban Milwaukee woman has denied any guilt in the hit-and-run death of Harry Rabe, a 59-year-old Kiel man, at New Holstein Sunday morning.

Miss Betty Johnson, 41, Oak Creek, pleaded innocent of charges of negligent homicide, leaving the scene of an accident and imprudent driving. She appeared Tuesday before Calumet County Judge D. H. Sehora.

The trial date was held open to await the return to the city of Dist. Atty. F. J. Schmieder. Miss Johnson was released under $500 bond. Acting Dist. Atty. Robert Lutz handled the arraignment.

Miss Johnson, a medical x-ray technician at the Army recruiting center, Milwaukee, was placed under arrest by Under-sheriff C. J. Kosmosky after she surrendered herself to county authorities Tuesday afternoon. She was being sought in connection with the death of Rabe, a tavern proprietor, who was dead on arrival at Calumet Memorial Hospital about 1:30 a.m. Sunday after a three-car crash.

Struck by Third Car
Rabe's car was struck by one driven by David Westenberg, 21, New Holstein, as Rabe entered State 57 from the Altona Supper Club parking lot about 12:45 a.m. Sunday, police reported.

Witnesses told police Rabe was thrown from his car and allegedly was struck by a third car, which skidded into the Rabe vehicle, then fled the scene.

In a statement to Lutz, Miss Johnson said she was driving west on Highway 57, south of the intersection of Highway 57 and Highway 100, when she saw the Rabe car.

Republican Majority Forces Passage of Redistricting Bill

Action by Senate After Long Debate

MADISON (AP) — The state Senate's Republican majority forced passage today of a congressional redistricting plan the party hopes to put on Democratic Gov. Gaylord Nelson's desk in time to meet a Monday deadline imposed by the federal court.

The measure, on which Assembly action still is pending, is the first of two bills embodying the Republican proposal for reapportioning the state's political districts in time for the fall elections.

Senate approval of the congressional plan came on an 18-10 vote, with Sen. Clifford Krueger of Merrill the only GOP member to desert party ranks.

The plan's major changes would eliminate the 9th District of Western Wisconsin, now represented by Rep. Lester Johnson, D-Black River Falls, and shift the seat to a new district comprised of Waukesha County and several northern suburbs of Milwaukee.

Democrats voiced strong objections to the congressional proposal but with their ranks thinned to nine members, they sensed the obvious outcome and limited their speechmaking to less than an hour.

Before the vote came, Sen. Lynn Stalbaum, D-Racine, said he wanted to "warn the majority that this proposal never will become law."

"Do you think for one minute that the governor and the court are going to except this crass political plan?" Stalbaum asked.

"Sick and Tired"
Sen. Alfred Laun, R-Kiel, countered that he was "sick and tired" of such threats by the Democratic minority.

Laun said he thought it apparent that the Democrats wanted the federal court panel, rather than the Legislature, to reapportion.

"And if that happens the people will tear the Democratic party apart in shreds," Laun predicted.

Debate on a GOP plan to realign state Senate and Assembly districts was scheduled to begin later in the day.

The Democrats made two unsuccessful tries to amend the congressional proposal along lines suggested in a Legislative Council committee reapportionment plan. The governor has endorsed the committee plan.

Try By Stalbaum
Stalbaum made the first try Tuesday night. His amendment would have moved a predominately Republican county out of the 1st Congressional District.

It would have shifted Green County from the 1st District to the 3rd. The Republican realignment bill does not alter the present setup of the 1st District which is now composed of Racine, Kenosha, Green, Rock and Walworth counties. The 3rd District seat has been held by a Republican for many years but Democrats have won in the 1st occasionally because of the strong Democratic vote in Racine and Kenosha counties.

Stalbaum touched off political fireworks when he offered the amendment which he said would cut the population spread existing between the districts proposed in the Republican plan from 67,000 to 36,000.

Sen. Earl Morton, R-Kenosha, challenged the amendment, charging it was proposed for "purely partisan purposes."

Appleton Firm Gets $4 Million Army Contract

Kurz & Root Named To Build 2,511 Generator Sets

The U. S. Army Engineer Corps announced today the award of a $4,501,716 contract to Kurz and Root Co., Appleton, for 2,511 10 kilowatt, 60 cycle, engine generator sets.

Electric generators for the contract will be built by the company's generator division at Appleton. Eugene B. Brownell, president of Kurz & Root Co., said. Final assembly, test and shipment of the gasoline engine driven sets will be from the Kurz & Root Power Unit Division at Cedarburg, over a period of eight months beginning in May, 1963.

Controls for the equipment, consisting of static, exciter-regulators will be manufactured by Bronson Electronics Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Kurz & Root, either at its Flora, Ind., plant or possibly at the Seymour, Wis., plant. The Seymour plant has been leased to Electric Storage Battery Co. of Philadelphia, but the firm is moving its operations to West Orange, N.J., and Raleigh, N.C., and the plant will revert to Bronson Electronics at the completion of the present lease in July, 1962.

Used for Missile Programs
The engine generator sets will supply electric power for radio, radar and electronic equipment used by the military services in connection with various missile programs.

Kurz & Root Co. currently employs approximately 300 people at its four divisional plants at Appleton; Cedarburg; Flora, Ind.; and Anaheim, Calif. Employment will increase gradually over the next 12 months, reaching a maximum of 450 people in 1963. The award received today will enable the company to continue such expansion.

The Appleton plant is hiring at the present time for all shifts. Machinists in particular are in demand. Employment build-up at Cedarburg will commence in July.

13 Convicts In Protest Atop Tower

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Thirteen inmates are perched on a water tower at Western State Penitentiary today in a protest over conditions at the institution.

It was anyone's guess how long they would stay there. Prison officials decided to wait them out. They are on a catwalk about 100 feet above the ground.

Six prisoners scrambled up the tower shortly after dinner Tuesday night to join a convict who had been on the tower since Monday. They had stuffed their pockets with food.

Protests Treatment
Then, with buckshot flying, six more prisoners dashed across the prison yard and up the tower a short time later.

The whole thing started Monday afternoon when inmate Robert Payne, 29, formerly of Washington, D.C., climbed the tower, protesting the treatment of prisoners in solitary confinement.

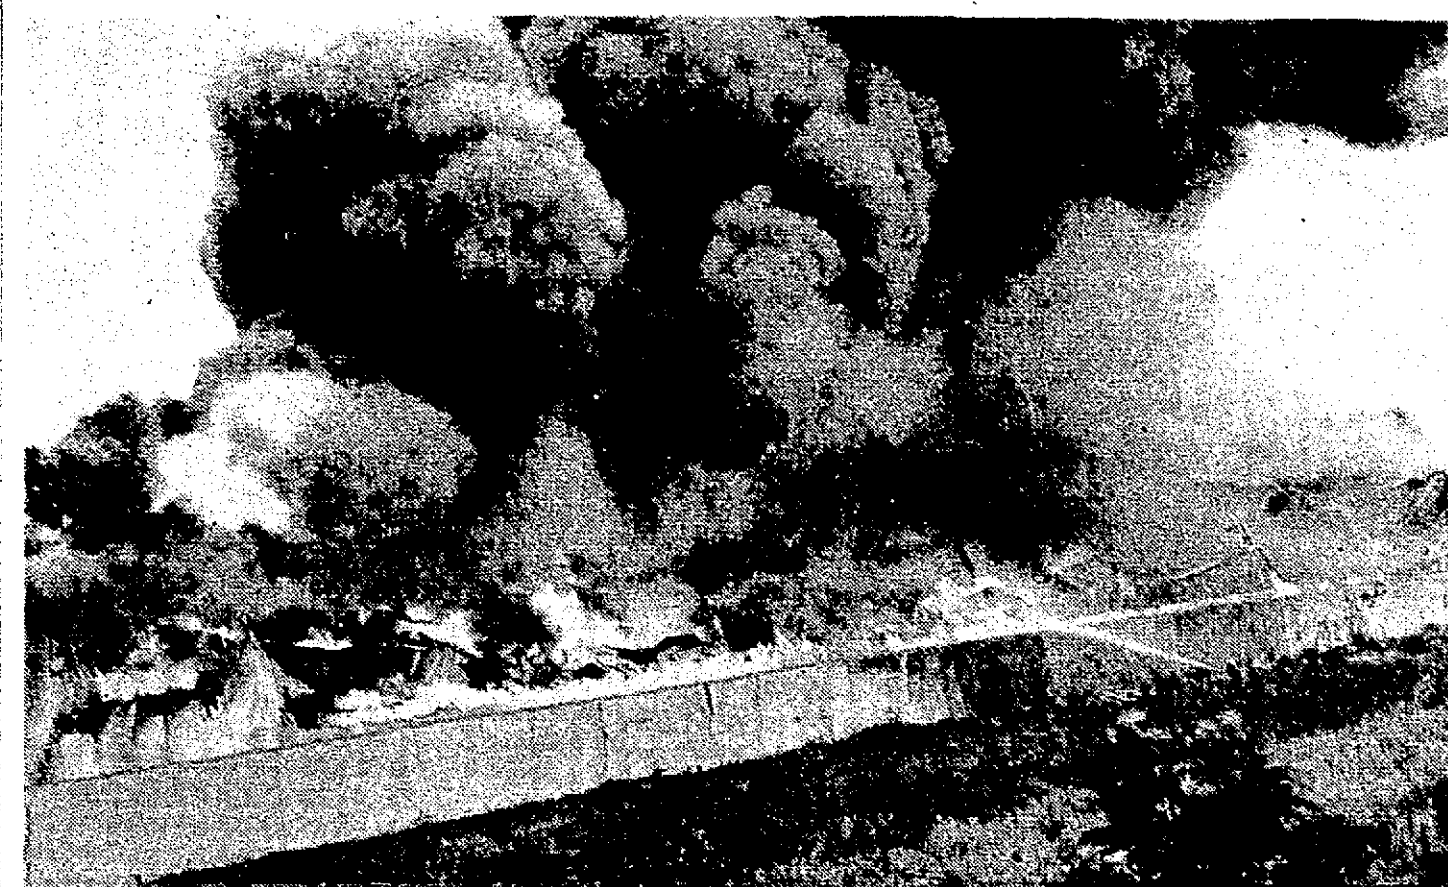

He said he wouldn't come down until he was assured a chance to speak with a state official.

On the tower the 13 prisoners displayed some bedsheets sewed together with this message written on it: "We are protesting brutality. Our presence (presence) is to support Payne's allegations and dispute the claim of the warden."

Warning Shot
Warden James Maroney said that three guards fired two shot-gun volleys into the air when the second group of six dashed for the tower. He said the shots were intended only as a warning.

For a time, prison officials spent anxious moments, fearful that a riot might develop among some 750 prisoners in a recreational area.

"Amazing as it may seem," Maroney said, "they were all very quiet."

Cola Parker, Ex-President of Kimberly-Clark, Succumbs

Noted Executive Was Key Figure In National Affairs, Industry

MENASHA — Cola G. Parker, 72, 365 Lake Road, retired president and board chairman of Kimberly-Clark Corp., died this morning at his home.

Parker was released from The Clara Clark Memorial Hospital Tuesday after undergoing several days of tests.

Parker, born July 1, 1890, also was a past president of the National Association of Manufacturers. He is chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago.

Since 1960, he was an employer delegate to the International Labor Organization conference at Geneva, Switzerland.

Parker retired as Kimberly-Clark board chairman July 1, 1955, after 18 years of service with the company. In his active life, Parker held many industrial, civic and honorary posts.

Came in 1937
He joined the company in 1937 as a vice president, director and member of the executive committee. In 1942 he was elected president and in his 13 years as chief executive he guided the company through some of its greatest expansion. He was named board chairman when he retired as president in 1953.

When Parker joined Kimberly-Clark in 1937, the company had invested capital of $37 million and sales of $27 million. When he took over as president in 1942, the year 1956, he had served as a sales were $41 million and investment capital was about the same situation.

In 1953, when Parker had retired as president and was serving as chairman of the board sales were $176 million. Last year they were over $400 million.

In December, 1959, Parker was elected to the National Association of Manufacturers as its president. He was the second Wisconsin industrialist to receive the NAM honor.

In April, 1956, Parker was elected a counselor of the national industrial conference board for a five-year term.

Parker, a Quaker, in March, 1958, was named to the Council of 129. Raymond C. Thirk, 53, 189 N. Twelfth St., Clintonville. (Story on Page D3)

Attacks Grow on Prayer Ban

Change Proposed in U.S. Constitution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress, still firing could win the needed two-thirds majority in both houses and ratify Court's ruling against public school prayers, have introduced states.

In the Senate, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said he didn't think the proposals to put classroom prayers in the constitution could be passed.

The proposition of separation of church and state is so ingrained in our people that I doubt that such an amendment would be adopted," Dirksen said.

A similar view was expressed in the House by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who declared the court had no other choice.

"The First Amendment is well grounded in history and has of federal programs of assistance served to save the United States from civil religious strife," Celler said.

Quemoy Calm Amid Rumors Of Invasion

QUEMOY (AP) — Nationalist Chinese defenders on this bit of gun-bristling rock are taking the massive Communist buildup on the China mainland only five miles away a lot more calmly than most of the rest of the world.

In the last three weeks, a top Nationalist commander reports, the Reds have boosted their military might to about 400,000 infantry and more than 300 jet fighters in the mainland crescent that rings three sides of the Quemoy complex.

That is 50 per cent above the pre-June 1 estimates of Communist strength in the area.

The Nationalists have an estimated 70,000 soldiers on this 50 square miles of island. The only planes here are a few tiny single-engine artillery spotters. Jet defense for the Quemoy complex would have to come from Formosa airbases 150 to 200 miles away or—possibly—from U.S. Navy carriers operating in the shallow Formosa Strait.

American jets would defend Quemoy only if the Communists attacked and then only if President Kennedy decided that the Red attack was the prelude to an attack against Formosa itself.

U.S. Trying to Avert Fighting by Chinese

Diplomatic, Military Moves Aimed at Forestalling Any Possible Move by Either Side

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials said today current U.S. diplomatic and military moves in the Far East are designed to forestall any possible outbreak of fighting between Red China and Nationalist China.

President Kennedy is expected to discuss the Formosa situation and the buildup of Chinese Communist forces opposite the Nationalist-held area at a news conference late today.

One question he may clarify is U.S. policy with respect to the defense of the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu which lie close to the Communist mainland. The policy laid down under the Eisenhower administration was that the United States would actively support the Nationalist defense of those islands only if a Red attack on them was considered to be the first step in an attack on Formosa.

The United States has sent units of the 7th Fleet into Formosan waters, possibly with the dual purpose of defending Nationalist strongholds against any assault and at the same time discouraging the Nationalist forces from moving against the Red Chinese.

George W. Anderson Jr., chief of naval operations, said Tuesday night he foresees "no real trouble" in the Formosa Strait. He told newsmen in Las Vegas, Nev., that he doubts Red China will launch any serious attack on the offshore islands.

The United States is reported to have told Red China through its ambassador at Warsaw that this country would not support any invasion attempt by Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek.

Red China Warned

At the same time American Ambassador John Moors Cabot is said to have warned Red Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping Nan against any Communist strike at the Chinese Nationalists.

The ambassadors discussed the Formosa Strait situation at a Warsaw meeting last Saturday.

The Peiping regime began moving heavy troop reinforcements into the coastal region of Fukien Province opposite Formosa about two weeks ago. Its propagandists began a campaign accusing the United States of planning to assist a Nationalist assault on the mainland.

Long-Standing Threat

Chiang has been threatening to return and liberate China proper from Communist rule since he fled to Formosa a dozen years ago. One theory as to the origin of the present potential crisis is that the Red leaders in Peiping are now for the first time taking his threats seriously because of the grave difficulties with which they are faced inside the country.

Red China is caught up in serious crop shortages and an industrial breakdown which are believed to have caused widespread unrest. But there have been no signs to the outside world that there was any revolutionary ferment in the land.

Prospects for Congressional Action Improve

Decisions Expected On Legislative Proposals of Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress machinery is beginning to move toward some decisions on President Kennedy's major legislative proposals.

Despite an unresolved Senate-House spat over prestige that has blocked passage of money bills, administration prospects for early action on important measures seem improved.

A sugar quota bill, drastically revised from the measure the House previously passed, got the blessing and support in the Senate of Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

Agreement Needed

Final agreement between the two houses is needed on this measure before the fiscal year expires at midnight Saturday.

In this same deadline category is the administration's House-passed measure to raise the debt limit to $308 billion. Leaders hope to bang it through the Senate Thursday or Friday.

The House faces up to decisions on Kennedy's international trade expansion bill, cleared Tuesday by an 8-7 vote on the Rules Committee for procedures which would bar amendments from the floor.

Although there were no show-down votes, the House Agriculture Committee seemed to be making some headway in salvaging part of the Kennedy farm program in a new measure to replace the strict controls bill passed by the Senate and rejected by the House.

Compromise Predicted

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, predicted final compromises between the two houses will produce a wheat control provision and an extension of the present feed grains program.

There were some signs of movement, too, on the long-deadlocked bill for federal aid to higher education. Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., discussed the matter with Kennedy at a White House meeting Tuesday.

In this case, the House wants loans and grants and the Senate wants only loans to colleges. Kennedy has favored the latter approach.

Clergy Has Big Voice in New Church's Setup

Given About Half Of Representatives In Lutheran Councils

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS SERVICE

DETROIT — Laymen and clergy may be equals among all the Lutheran believers, but the 6,385 pastors apparently are "more equal" than the other 3,200,000 members of The Lutheran Church in America, which comes into being here this week.

This new denomination will have representative government in its various boards, executive council and biennial conventions.

There won't be proportionate representation, however.

Less than one-fourth of 1 per cent of the membership — the clergy — will have roughly half the representatives.

About 99 1/2 per cent — the laymen — will have the other half.

The man who will preside over the birth of The Lutheran Church in America (LCA), the Rev. Dr. Malvin H. Lundeen, concedes that there's room for improvement.

"It's not as completely representative as it ought to be," he said of the church's "polity," or system of government.

Traditional Setup

Under the new setup, the "basal polity" will give an equal voice in denominational affairs to pastors on the one hand and to congregations on the other hand, rather than to individual church members.

There's nothing unusual about this. It's merely following in the tradition of some Lutheran groups. The Danish and Finnish branches of Lutheranism, however, have had a tradition of greater lay participation.

The Rev. Dr. Lundeen, of Minneapolis, is president of the Augustana Lutheran Church, the Swedish background denomination participating in a four-way merger to form the LCA.

He talked about the issue of clergy-lay equality in an interview.

"It's true," he said, "if we have a priesthood of believers, then there's only a difference in function between the pastor and layman."

Layman's Function

While the pastor is in charge of the "sacramental side" of the church, he explained, the layman is responsible for applying Christian principles to every aspect of life.

The Rev. Dr. Lundeen didn't have an answer to the question of clergy-lay control of the church, but he said it's "quite possible" more proportionate representation should be adopted.

"We should provide as many opportunities as possible for lay leadership in the life of the church," he said.

"In practice we have tried to do this," he added, even though there hasn't been equal representation in church government.

The four Lutheran church bodies will unite in a constituting convention tomorrow through Sunday in Detroit's Cobo Hall.

Provincial Officials Hold Back Grain Supply for Peiping

First Known Break in Monolithic Chinese Red Party Authority

BY ALBERT RAVENHOLT
Chicago Daily News Service

HONG KONG — Communist provincial officials in some regions of China are refusing to make their state deliveries of grain upon which the government in Peiping depends for feeding its armies and officials.

The problem has become so acute that Mao Tze-tung personally has been visiting recalcitrant provinces to induce them to make grain deliveries, including a trip earlier this month to Canton and South China.

First Harvest
This is the first known break in the hitherto monolithic structure of authority the world's largest Communist Party has imposed upon China. Significantly it is a rupture within the Communist Party's own chain of command.

The struggle within China for control of the "first harvest" now being gathered reflects a growing realization that the "good earth" grain upon which the government in Peiping depends for feeding its armies and officials.

The problem has become so acute that Mao Tze-tung personally has been visiting recalcitrant provinces to induce them to make grain deliveries, including a trip earlier this month to Canton and South China.

First Harvest
This is the first known break in the hitherto monolithic structure of authority the world's largest Communist Party has imposed upon China. Significantly it is a rupture within the Communist Party's own chain of command.

increasingly freely blaming the government in Peiping for their plight. This is revealed in letters coming through the mail to relatives in this British crown colony.

It is too early to judge the political consequences of the rumblings of popular dissatisfaction. Also unclear is the extent of refusals by Communist officials, other than those visited by Mao in South China to obey orders for delivery of food to Peiping. Equally uncertain is the capacity of the Communist central government to take disciplinary action against its own local representatives, whose essential purpose is to try to keep enough food to maintain order and production at home.

But the dilemma now confronting the Red planners in Peiping is most unenviable. The winter wheat crop harvested on the North China plain this month was only about three-fourths of a normal good yield — the spring drought north of Yellow River came too early, also delaying the planting of second crop. Now during last week sudden floods are reported from Honan and the southern fringes of the winter wheat belt.

Deep in West China, below the foothills of Tibet, lies Szechuan Province, which with its rich soils and 65,000,000 people fed the Chinese Nationalists during the long war with Japan. Traditionally Szechuan has been a surplus food exporter, shipping rice down the great Yangtze River waterway. This year, for yet unexplained reasons that may relate to peasant opposition, Szechuan is reported short of food.

Hunan and Hupeh Provinces, forming the largest Central China "rice bowl" have experienced several floods that already have damaged the first rice crop. Communist cadres, anxious to offset the anticipated shortages, are promoting the planting of sweet potatoes and other tubers on hill-sides as substitutes for grain.

Garden Plots
In an effort to encourage the peasants to work, the Communists have abandoned most of the harsh features of the communes. Peasant families are allocated individual garden plots—in South China the average size is 15 by 15 feet, as big as a small American living room. On these the peasants are raising a more plentiful supply of vegetables. But the continued scarcity of protein foods can be judged by the price of one egg, which in the South China free markets is equivalent to about 16 cents in U.S. money.

Among the most severe handicaps the Communists now are facing is the considerable disorganization now beginning to become apparent.

Some 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 Chinese workers, who this spring were ordered to move out from the cities to work on farms, are proving to be restless and discontented. Many were deprived of their ration cards when they left their factories and farmers in some regions now are reluctant to welcome these new mouths to feed from their already inadequate food stocks.

In several South China districts these rootless workers are reported raiding government granaries.

During the last 18 months the Communist government countered the shortage of food in the countryside by feeding the great coastal cities such as Shanghai and Tientsin largely with imported food.

As the end of this month, Red China will have imported some 9,000,000 tons of grain, chiefly wheat from Australia and Canada. But these food purchases in the world market were made partly with long-term credit. Now Chinese Communist foreign exchange reserves nearly are exhausted.

Exports of tungsten and other minerals and raw materials have been curtailed, particularly by the deterioration of railway transport and the shift of workers to the countryside. So Chinese Communist planners face the prospect of another inadequate harvest without funds to continue the imports of food so vital for feeding the big cities.

This in turn generates additional pressure upon the Communist political structure to secure deliveries of grain from the provinces.

Prospective Freshmen Still Able To Find Colleges With Openings

BY LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.
Professor of Education,
University of Southern California

Did your favorite college reject your application? Cheer up. It's not the end of the world.

The admissions officer who turned you down may have been doing you a favor. Perhaps you were not a good risk to succeed in his college. He may have saved you from failure.

He based his judgment on your record and application. Perhaps your high school record was not up to the standards of his college. Or perhaps you failed to present your case in the best possible light.

Don't Give Up
Whatever the reason for your rejection, don't give up now. A college education is too important to your future. You still have an opportunity to demonstrate that you can succeed.

Here are some things you can do:

1. Consult your guidance counselor. The chances are he is in touch with accredited colleges that are still looking actively for students to fill out their freshman classes. Review your rejected applications. Check your preparation and aptitude. Choose a field and a college in which you feel you have a chance to succeed.
2. Write to the organizations which have been set up to put students in touch with colleges that have openings.

They charge a fee of $10 to $15, which should be sent with your application and records. They are Association of College Admissions Counselors, 2300 Shermer Rd., Northbrook, Ill.; College Admissions Center, 610 Church St., Evanston, Ill.; College Admissions Assistance Center, 41 East 65th St., New York 21, N. Y.; and Catholic College Admissions Center, 500 Salisbury St., Worcester, 9, Mass.

These centers will make your application and record available to colleges that still have room for students. Most of their applicants get invitations from one or more colleges.

Junior Colleges
3. Don't overlook junior colleges.

They are two-year colleges offering courses designed for students who intend to transfer to four-year schools without loss of credit. Sometimes junior colleges give a better education than some larger universities. Many hire only teachers with master's degrees while universities often use inexperienced instructors to teach lower division classes.

A junior college will give you a chance to demonstrate your ability to do quality college work. A year or two at a junior college can make you more welcome at a four-year university — even at the university of your choice which turned you down this year.

A brand new bike, purchased from his earnings, helps him cover his lengthy route, while a great deal of the rest of his earnings are building up a savings account.

Lutherans Dedicate Parsonage, School Addition in Ceremony

BRILLION — Dedication of the new parsonage and addition to the school was held Sunday at Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church. Rev. Arnold Tiefel, Menasha was guest speaker at the morning service and the Rev. Markus Liesner, Milwaukee, at the evening service.

The dedication ceremony took place after the morning service in front of the school and parsonage. The building contractors, El-dor Goldschmidt and Harold Handke, officially handed over the keys to the buildings to the chairman of the building committee, Wilbert Behnke, who then gave the keys to the president of the congregation, Helmuth Krueger.

Gov. Nelson's Trouble

Gov. Nelson's statement to the Wisconsin Democratic convention that he, as the candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, is in serious trouble with the voters, received the state-wide attention that it deserved.

The governor told the Democratic delegates, "The one person on our ticket in serious trouble is I. I am a realist in politics and I know it. Throughout the state, and in every part, so it is no coincidence, friends of mine circulating nomination papers have constantly run into trouble with my papers and nobody else's.

"I am in trouble because a substantial number of people blame me for the selective sales tax. I am told they are saying, 'Nelson let us down.'"

Unquestionably Nelson was making a dramatic appeal in hopes of getting state-wide attention and probably understanding of his plight. The governor feels that he is being unjustly blamed for having hoisted the hodgepodge selective sales tax on the people of this state. He said there was a massive campaign in restaurants, stores, taverns and elsewhere to charge, "Three cents for Gaylord," in collecting the sales tax. This campaign evidently is being widely felt and now that the leaders of the Democratic party in Wisconsin have approved repeal of this bill, as Nelson knew they would, when he was speaking, the governor was standing alone with his burden. It is fair to point out that the Nelson selective sales tax bill came into being as much because of Democratic leaders' opposition to any sales tax bill as it was to the Republican demand for a sales tax. In short, the governor was caught between the two forces and in his effort to escape he proposed the selective sales tax.

The question to be decided now, which Gov. Nelson appears to ignore, is whether the voter opposition in Wisconsin is to the selective sales tax, which is a very troublesome thing, or to any sales tax. Democrats would make it appear that the opposition is to any sales tax. The Republicans, on the contrary, are quite certain that the fundamental idea of a sales tax has been widely accepted by the people of Wisconsin and that their opposition is to the selective sales tax which Gov. Nelson insisted upon.

It is to be hoped that this problem will be put to the people squarely in an understandable manner and that this up-coming election campaign will settle once and for all the argument over the sales tax which has continued for years.

The Defeat of the Farm Bill

The Kennedy administration, apparently in shock over the defeat of the farm bill, has attempted to place the blame on the Republicans in the House and to predict an additional cost to the taxpayers of one billion dollars next year. This was purely a political expression and should have closer examination before it is accepted as fact.

It is true that all Republican members of the House, with one exception, voted to defeat the farm bill and most assuredly they will have to accept the responsibility for their actions.

It is only fair to note, however, that the 167 Republicans voting to send the measure back to the Agricultural Committee were joined by 48 Democrats, to defeat the measure, 215 to 205. The Republicans could not defeat a House measure alone on a strictly party vote and therefore other reasons must be sought to explain the action. Rep. Charles A. Halleck, Ind., Republican leader of the House, in replying to the White House statements, said that the measure was defeated not because of partisan opposition to it, but because it was a bad bill. Since the Democrats who joined with the Republicans on this vote are widely scattered across the country there are grounds for accepting Halleck's statement.

In fact, opposition to the bill was led by Charles B. Shuman, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, which is one of the largest farm organizations in the country and is devoted largely to the interests of farmers in the Middle West.

Rep. John Byrnes, Republican, of Green Bay, who voted against the measure reported to his constituents in the Eighth district before the measure came to a vote. He said the effect of this bill upon Wisconsin farms and other livestock areas would be costly, because the bill would have extended "harsh controls on production to wheat and feed grains, almost doubling the number of allotments the government would have to administer and bringing in twice as many controlled acres as under the present program. For the first time, the farmer who grows feed for his livestock, including dairy cows, would be told how much he could produce. The production of dairy farms would not be controlled yet, but a mechanism is established which would make that control easier within the next few years."

Rep. Byrnes said that his view of the bill was not a partisan one since it was recognized by Republicans and Democrats alike. He then quoted Sen. William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat, who had previously written his view of the bill in his newsletter. According to Republican Byrnes, here is what Democrat Proxmire wrote of the measure:

"Administration Farm Bill Strikes Blow at Dairy Farmers . . . The number one victim of the administration farm bill, just passed by the Senate, is the dairy farmer. If you are a dairy farmer, your feed grain production will be reduced or limited, and you alone among the nation's farmers can not look forward to a penny increase in income. You alone give but get nothing . . . dairy farmers will be hit directly by feed grain controls which, if approved in a national referendum, will sharply limit you and every farmer, no matter how small, in the amount of feed and silage you grow on your farm, even if you feed it to your own cows and even if you don't vote in the referendum. Furthermore, if you grow 25 acres or more of feed grains you will suffer an actual cutback in your production, even though you feed every bushel of it on your own farm. . . . The real injustice in this administration bill is that although you suffer this serious production limitation, you won't get one cent more for your milk."

President Shuman of the Farm Bureau declares the defeat of the bill was a victory for farmers, consumers, and taxpayers.

"The only losers were the political empire builders in Washington," he said. Furthermore, he continues, "It was a much needed victory for constitutional government. The American people should know the extent to which the executive branch of the government sought to bully or buy with political pressure."

In the view of this area's representative in the House and the state's Democratic senator, and a chief lobbyist for farmers, the bill was indeed a bad bill.

Horseshoe Playing in Sad State

In this day of grave international crises, severe national problems and pressing state needs, it is quite understandable that little attention is being paid to the sad demise of horseshoe playing.

There was a day, apparently long past, when any male who had grown up on a farm could throw a ringer like Warren Spahn tossing a strike.

But with the advent of the tractor and the resulting lack of horseshoes and with the approach of more sophisticated entertainment, it appears that the day of horseshoes is no more.

Have You Paid Citizen Investment?

From The Wall Street Journal

Washington's politicians seem increasingly intrigued by euphemisms, like "senior citizens" for old folks. So perhaps they would find useful a suggestion dropped the other day by a Maryland State health official, Robert M. Brown.

Mr. Brown told the Maryland Municipal League that public health people can accomplish more when they speak in positive terms instead of using hackneyed, negative-sounding phrases. For instance, he said that "water quality control" has a more positive ring than "pollution control." Further, municipal waste ought to be called

"spont water" instead of "sewage."

Now surely the Government should find this idea stimulating. How about that bad old term, "Government spending"? How much better it would be and how much more accurate, to say instead, "wealth distribution," or "resources re-allocation."

Or take that very, very bad word, "deficit." How much more soothing to call it a "minus adjustment." And "tax" is especially unpleasant. It might have much less sting if replaced by something with the grand blandness of "citizen investment." Which a tax isn't, of course, but that's quibbling over details.

We think the Administration is missing a bet if it doesn't grab Mr. Brown and make him its Semantics Coordinator forthwith. For as he said, changing the language makes things sound better, even if it doesn't clean them up.

Life Grim for Youngster, Too In East Germany

From the Dayton Daily News

If life is grim for adults in East Germany, it might as well be grim for youngsters, too. After all, who spoiled the rising generation?

Some such reasoning must be behind the latest Communist school directives. These scourge the students to an unrelieved diet or study in school and to an endless list of household chores after the bell rings. No loafing, no dawdling, no socializing, no extracurricular activities.

It's possible, of course, to overdo the frills. One reason some European kids are a couple of years ahead of their American counterparts is an earnest view of life, which didn't originate with the Communists. But all work, no play, etc., is a recipe for even more dullness than the Iron Curtain standard.

Lyndon Johnson Doesn't Make Headlines But Is Close to JFK

BY WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson is confounding Washington these days by quietly going about his assigned chores.

He is not biting his nails over the Billie Sol Estes case. He is not trying to run the U. S. Senate. He is, however, arousing more speculation, probably, than any other man on the New Frontier.

Washington just can not get used to the idea of Johnson being anything but the wheeler dealer he was in the days of his senate glory.

"What's Lyndon up to?" This is the question that has been asked ever since the proud Texan stepped down from the powerhouse post of senate majority leader to the job — humble in comparison — of vice president.

Conflicting Stories Last week, for instance, two conflicting stories were published about him.

One had it that the reason the Kennedy legislative program was in such difficulty in Congress was because Johnson was handling it. The other suggested, to the contrary, that he wanted to handle it but could not because the President would not let him.

"Both stories were wrong," said a White House aide. "One was written by a reporter who dislikes Johnson, the other by a reporter who has it in for us."

Johnson does not make the headlines now that he did once. One of the most recent explanations offered for this was that he was "laying low" because of the Estes case.

Attends Many Meetings But there is no more truth to this, say authoritative sources, than to the story that Estes had given Johnson an airplane.

Much of what Johnson does now never gets into the papers.

He spends a lot of time attending cabinet and National Security Council meetings and functioning as an adviser to the President.

But it is John F. Kennedy who makes the decisions — and gets the headlines.

Johnson remains a busyman. This is quickly apparent to the visitor who drops in for a chat in room P-38 in the senate side of the Capitol.

A senator drops by to introduce a new congressman. The Speaker of the House telephones, requesting counsel, on the eve of the crucial vote on the farm bill.

Pictures Line Office

The private office is lined with the pictures of Konrad Adenauer, Chiang Kai-Shek, and other world leaders he met on his travels since he became vice president.

Like Richard Nixon, Johnson is a traveling representative of the President. He made dramatic visits last year to Berlin and Southeast Asia when trouble erupted. More world travels are being planned for this year.

There are some other parallels with Nixon. He has the same job, for instance, of fighting to get the Negro a better break. But it's a bigger job than it was under Nixon—two committees have been combined into the President's committee on equal employment opportunity, which Johnson heads.

Associated with Johnson in this effort is Sec of Labor Arthur Goldberg, who acts as the committee's executive officer, and George Reedy, a Johnson special assistant, who helps him handle the details.

Resolve Complaints

More than 2,000 complaints were received in the committee's first year, it is reported, and half of these were resolved.

The committee has the authority to terminate, with the stroke of a pen, the contract of any company doing business with the government that refuses to correct a case of discrimination called to its attention.

Two other Johnson responsibilities, which Nixon did not have are associated with space and the Peace Corps.

He is chairman of the advisory council of the Peace Corps and chairman of the National Space Council.

Aided by Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the Space Council, Johnson sparked the drive for a manned mission to the moon and for the big boosters needed in connection with it.

Close Relationship

Johnson is not only kept fully informed on everything important, as Nixon was. He also enjoys a far closer relationship to the President. He spends more time with him, in fact, than any other vice president ever has spent with the chief executive.

At Mr. Kennedy's insistence, he has a four-room suite in the Executive Office Building, next door to the White House. This is as sumptuous as his senate quarters and was once occupied by Gen. John J. Pershing.

Johnson breakfasts with the President, swims with him, spends evenings with him.

But after all is said and done, he labors under the same handicap as Nixon and every other man who has ever been vice president. He has no real power of his own. He is dependent on the desires of the President, who can either ignore him or give him a lot to do.

Now working hard and loyally in a second-fiddle role for the man he lost the nomination to in 1960, Johnson sums up his views of the job — and undoubtedly his future ambition — in a single remark.

"I want to be the sort of vice president to him that I would like to have if I were president."

He will be only 60 in 1968. His chances of achieving that ambition will depend, to a considerable degree, on how much he helps the Kennedy administration to establish a good record.

Several Reasons for Heel-Dragging in State Redistricting

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The heel-dragging of many legislators on the reapportionment question is occasioned by many factors, some of them fairly visible, others more subtle and difficult to isolate. There is the individual selfish interest of the incumbent who is content with the political arrangement in which he has prospered, and is reluctant to change for unknown consequences. There is a partisan interest, as in the fear of many Republicans that a literal population apportionment plan will help the Democrats, and the hope of the Democrats that it will.

There also is some prejudice among small town and rural folk about the dominance of the urban districts, a prejudice that is fed, if not justified, by the evidence that the politicians produced by the cities tend to be less able, as individuals, than those produced in the country.

Beyond all these, however, and perhaps as important as the rest in combination, is the awareness of the observant leaders of Small Town, Wis., that there are financial stakes involved. It is the economic element that also tends to make the well-heeled suburbs allies of the financially underprivileged far northern counties on the issue of urban domination of the state capitol and its law-making process.

HOW IT GOES

This reserve has no necessary relation to the legendary distrust between city slicker and country bumpkin.

It is related, instead, to the fact that the state treasury is a far more vital fact of life to rural Wisconsin than it is to the city, and that the law-making process and the control of tax collections has a more intimate relation to the welfare of the countryside than to the modern metropolis.

Scores of examples could be cited. The basic one is that most of the counties of Wisconsin get far more from state aids and taxes than they are sending to Madison, and that their deficits are made up by the city residents. Underlying the worry about reapportionment in favor of the cities is the thought that a change in the balance of power at Madison would change the tax distribution system.

There are emergent conflicts of interest on governmental policy between the city viewpoint and rural Wisconsin. The sternest criticism of the ancient town and county government systems, for example, comes from the influential urban opinion makers. These are treasured institutions in rural Wisconsin. Historically the rural resident has been able to wangle from the state tax base scores of goodies that have no counter-parts in the cities. Free calf vaccination, license discounts for farm motor vehicles, wild animal predator bounties, rich subsidies for town roads at a time that the state road administration is desperately appealing for through route improvement money, these and many other examples testify to the classical non-urban domination that would be endangered with the inexorable trend of the population to the urban centers.

DISTRESS AREAS

The most desperate resistance to redistricting comes from the regions that are comparatively underprivileged economically. The city of Superior is an example. Superior is Democratic. Its representatives are Democratic. But Superior also has a greater stake in a generous state budget policy than any other municipality in Wisconsin, and thus it is anxiously fighting the reapportionment movement that would reduce its influence in Madison.

Superior and scores of other Wisconsin communities would not be able to finance their local governmental services, schools, relief, roads and the rest, without generous assistance from Madison that is financed through levies on the relatively wealthy industrial centers such as Milwaukee and the smaller cities of southern and eastern Wisconsin. It is this practical fact of political life that explains why some of the Democrats in the legislature are hostile to redistricting, in spite of their platform pledges and the positions of their nominal party leaders. They are local politicians first, and statesmen second, and they are making no apologies for their choice.

Justice White Doesn't Fit Labeled Pigeonhole

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY
WASHINGTON (AP)—How is Byron R. (Whizzer) White, our newest and youngest (45) member of the Supreme Court, panning out?

To make a risky judgment on the record thus far, he is going to be no flaming liberal, no social reformer type like, for example, Justice William O. Douglas. Nor a right winger, either.

As befits a former Rhodes scholar, he has been doing his home work and his opinions are meaty, whether or not you agree with them. He is not afraid to speak up in the awesome presence of his elders.

Take Monday, when he wrote a dissent gravely telling a majority of the justices they were wrong.

Narcotics Case
At issue was a California law aimed at narcotics addiction. This made it a crime to be an addict. It provided that a convicted person must be stowed away in county jail for at least 90 days, whether or not he ever applied the needle to his arm in California or committed any antisocial act there.

The court majority held this was cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the Constitution. Douglas, concurring, wrote a lengthy opinion stressing the idea that an addict is sick. He recalled the old days when the insane were sent to the whipping post, or into dungeons, or even burned at the stake.

But White took the majority, including Douglas, to task, on the ground that it had broken a "wise rule of not deciding constitutional questions except where necessary." He disputed the contention that California tried to punish the defendant in the case, one Lawrence Robinson, for being sick.

There was no evidence at all, he wrote, that Robinson had lost the power to control his acts. (California has another law, a civil statute, providing hospitalization for addicts who are so far gone that they have lost self-control.)

White said the defendant was an "incipient addict, a redeemable user (of narcotics), and the state chose to send him to jail for 90 days rather than to attempt to confine him by civil proceedings under another statute which requires a finding that the addict has lost the power of self-control."

Respectfully, White told his elders they should not write into the Constitution their own "abstract notions of how to handle the narcotics problem."

Besides this dissent, White has written three majority opinions since he went on the court April 16. Perhaps the most important held that a labor union's officers and members cannot be sued for damages for violation of a no-strike agreement—only their unions may be sued.

Federal Policy
He said it was long-standing federal policy not to penalize members for a union's transgressions. "Where the union has inflicted the injury," he said, "it alone must pay."

This could hardly be classed as a conservative stance.

So it is hard, yet to fit White into any labeled pigeonhole.

When Felix Frankfurter first went on the Supreme Court he was variously described—by his friends as a liberal and by his critics as a radical. Now he is known as one of the court's conservatives.

Which proves, perhaps, that everything is relative. Or maybe it proves that labels do not mean much.

Navy Denies Fleet Buildup Off Formosa

Public Relations Officer Declares Report in Error

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—A spokesman for Pacific fleet headquarters told the Associated Press on Sunday that units of the 7th fleet had been deployed toward Formosa. He said they included some ships based at Yokosuka, the largest U.S. Naval base in Japan.

The spokesman's comment was prompted by news stories from Yokosuka that warships of the 7th fleet had sailed from there for "operations at sea." The comment from here was incorporated in a story June 25 from Taipei, Formosa, which said U.S. warships were on their way from Japan to reinforce the 7th fleet's Formosa patrol in the face of a reported Chinese Communist military buildup up on the coast opposite the Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Asked specifically about the ship movements, the spokesman here called them "almost routine" and said the 7th fleet is Japanese are sensitive about U.S. ships based in their country moving into Far East trouble spots.

In Washington a Navy spokesman said the 7th fleet is always redispensed of 7th Fleet forces to handle any problems that might arise in the Formosa strait. Not all ships were included, he said, adding that the fleet also maintained its other duty stations. On Monday, Capt. James Dowdell, public information officer for commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet, telephoned the Associated Press to deny reports of a 7th fleet buildup in the Formosa strait.

There was speculation here that the denial was based on concern the deployment might cause diplomatic difficulties with Japan.

The 125 ships of the 7th fleet patrol a large area from the northern Pacific off Japan to the Indian Ocean.

the National Layman's Committee. He served the year before as its national chairman of national Sunday school week.

He headed the Neenah Red Cross chapter's 1960 fund drive.

Parker came from a partnership in the law office of Whitney, Wise and Parker of New York City where he had long represented the paper industry and many of its chief companies, including Kimberly-Clark.

According to a national business magazine, Kimberly-Clark by the mid-30's was facing the realization that it was not a family enterprise but had become a publicly owned corporation. To handle the new and complex problems of relations with the government, stockholders and the public, the company management felt a need for legal counsel in the firm.

A native of Monroe, Wis., Parker came to Neenah as a youth when his father, the late Charles Summer Parker, was named superintendent of schools. His first job was as a high school youth when he worked in a corrugated box and carton factory.

He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1911 where he was known as a hard-working student who liked water polo and swimming. He received his law degree as a doctor of jurisprudence from that same university a year later.

Following his graduation, he practiced law in Chicago until World War I when he enlisted as a private and was discharged in 1919 as an infantry captain. He practiced law in New York after his discharge.

In his 11 years as Kimberly-Clark president, he directed an expansion program that brought establishment of new pulp or paper mills at Terrace Bay and Kapuskasing in Ontario, Canada; Coosa Pines, Ala. and Memphis, Tenn.

A mill was acquired at Munising, Mich., and existing mills at Niagara, Neenah, Appleton and Kimberly in Wisconsin and Niagara Falls, N. Y., were enlarged. When he retired, a new main of ashland a new plant at Fullerton, Calif., were under construction.

Besides his business, industrial and governmental ties, Parker was a member of Phi Gamma Delta Club, New York; Metropolitan Club, Washington, D.C.; Chicago Club and University Club, Chicago; Riverview Country Club, Appleton; North Shore Golf Club, and Neenah Nodaway Yacht Club and Neenah Club, Neenah.

Parker survivors are two sons, Summer, of Menasha, Valentine, New York City; two daughters, Mrs. George W. Pearson and Mrs. William Brooks, both of Oregon. Mrs. Parker died in 1959. Westgor Funeral Home in Neenah is making arrangements.

Oran Terrorists Appear to Give Up Bitter Fight

ALGIERS (AP)—Leaders of the terrorist Secret Army Organization in Oran, which has virtually held that city in its grip for months, appeared today to be giving up the bloody struggle.

It was too early to be certain that the secret army was fading off the scene in the western Algerian city.

But there were these indications:

—French authorities reported that former Col. Jean Defour, one of the secret army leaders in western Algeria, made a broadcast Tuesday night ordering a halt to sabotage in Oran.

—Unconfirmed reports circulated in Oran that ex-Gen. Paul Gardy, had fled Oran with several of his aides. Gardy had announced he was taking over leadership of the secret army after several top figures in the organization were captured.

—Pierre Laffont, the director of the Oran paper, Echo D'Oran, and a leader of the European community, said Algeria should become independent in peace. In an editorial, Laffont called on residents of the Oran area to avoid new suffering during the days leading to independence.

Continuance in Estes Court Case

PECOS, Tex. (AP)—Judge J. H. Starley granted Billie Sol Estes a continuance today of his trial on charges of defrauding a fellow Reeves County farmer of $162,144. The district judge said that after hearing both the defense motion and the stand taken by the Chicago Club and University state he felt it would be futile to attempt to try the case in Reeves County at this time.

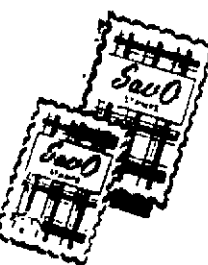

Although both the state and defense said they opposed any change of the trial site to another city, Judge Starley said he was still considering that possibility.

Dist. Atty. R. B. McGowan told the court the state did not join in the defense motion for continuance or agree with the defense's contention that a judge could not be obtained for a fair trial.

Court Prayer Decision Isn't What Critics Think

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court in its latest decision does not bar prayer as such in the public schools. It doesn't forbid the mention of God in the classroom. It merely says that no state government or any other branch of government can "direct" the saying of any prayer. In fact, it bars "official" prayers. It sees no objection to voluntary prayers, but does ban any religious "exercise."

The decision rendered by the highest court of the land on Monday is not as sweeping as first reports in the press may have indicated. It is true that Justice Douglas, in his "concurring" opinion, made some generalizations of his own that will evoke controversy — especially in Congress, where legislation on federal aid to church-related colleges is pending. The controlling judgment is, however, the ruling of the court, by a vote of 6 to 1. It was set forth in the opinion written by Justice Black.

Ruling and "Dictum"
But even the formal opinion of the court must be separated into two parts — the actual ruling and the so-called "dictum." The latter is just an expression of views by one justice and is not necessarily agreed to by the other justices who concur on the main point of the decision. Here is the ruling of the court as pronounced by Justice Black:

"We think that the constitutional prohibition against laws respecting an establishment of religion must at least mean that in this country it is no part of the business of government to compose official prayers for any group of the American people to recite as a part of a religious program carried on by government."

Justice Black wrote a footnote to the opinion in which he makes an important distinction as follows:

"There is of course nothing in the decision rendered here that is inconsistent with the fact that school children and others are often encouraged to express the period of such programs praying is a public official on the

What is really barred is any form of religious exercise prescribed by any branch of government or by any individual on the public payroll.

Brief Prayer
The prayer which brought the present case to the Supreme Court of the United States for a ruling was very brief. It said:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

Patriotic Songs
Thus, there is no bar to the singing of such songs as "God Bless America" or the verse in "The Star-Spangled Banner" which says "And this be our motto—in God is our trust."

Also, the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag is not affected, although in 1954 two words — "under God" — were added by an act of Congress. The phrase now reads, "One nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

All these vocal expressions involve apparently a voluntary action by the individual. They are not recited by official direction, nor do they contain anything which could be regarded as an "official prayer."

But what shall be done about Christmas celebrations or the reciting of any prayer in the classroom? No governmental body now can require such exercises. But if a class of pupils voluntarily sets up a program at Christmas and wants to sing any song, this is not barred by the new court ruling. Some pupils could object and could refrain from participating. They could even leave for the period of such programs praying is a public official on the

There was a regulation under the New York state law prescribing the prayer which said that students should not be compelled to take part in the reciting and that students could be excused from being in the room at the public payroll, performing a religious exercise in a governmental institution.

But the Supreme Court has said in effect, that all this makes no difference because the prayer was written by and "directed" by a governmental body. It was the House or Senate or court room is to establish a religion in the strictly historic meaning of those words. A religion is not established in the usual sense merely by letting those who chose to do so say the prayer that the public school teacher leads. Yet

Justice Douglas, in a "dictum" of his own, declares in a concurring opinion that he has grave doubts about the way the Supreme Court's own proceedings are opened by the marshal, who once government finances a religious exercise it inserts a divisive influence into our communities.

He also points out that each house of Congress opens its daily sessions by a prayer by official about possible consequences, chaplains and guest chaplains of not become the "law of the land."

Justice Douglas wrote. "Yet for me the principle is that 'official' prayers, which the same, no matter how briefly teachers are 'directed' to deliver the prayer is said, for in each of the instances given the person praying is a public official on the

Appleton Man Denies 3 Traffic Violations

CHILTON—A July 20 trial date has been set in Calumet County Court here for an Appleton man who denied three traffic violations when arraigned Monday.

Richard A. Bartman, 25, 530 N. Union St., pleaded innocent of reckless driving, driving after revocation of his driver's license and driving an unregistered vehicle. He appeared before Judge D. H. Seborna and posted bond of $400.

Bartman was arrested by Calumet County police on U.S. 10 just south of Appleton June 22.

At the same time I cannot say that to authorize this prayer (unlike the House or Senate or court room) is to establish a religion in the strictly historic meaning of those words. A religion is not established in the usual sense merely by letting those who chose to do so say the prayer that the public school teacher leads. Yet

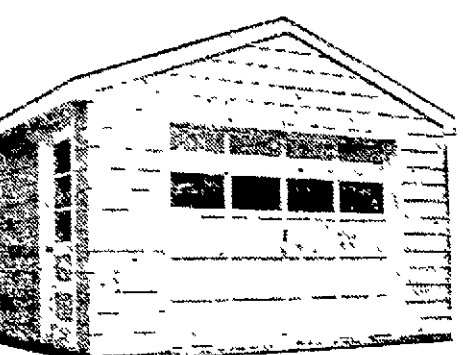

Justice Douglas, in a "dictum" of his own, declares in a concurring opinion that he has grave doubts about the way the Supreme Court's own proceedings are opened by the marshal, who once government finances a religious exercise it inserts a divisive influence into our communities.

He also points out that each house of Congress opens its daily sessions by a prayer by official about possible consequences, chaplains and guest chaplains of not become the "law of the land."

Areacrats Unlikely To Achieve Goal

Senate Approval of Area Districts Sen as Redistricting Scheme

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
MADISON — The state senate's approval of an "areacrat" plan for the legislative redistricting of the state in the future probably is part of the strategic maneuvering on the immediate population reapportionment issue, instead of a serious proposition for a fundamental change in the state constitution.

The 18 to 9 vote in the legislature's upper house Tuesday backing the idea of organizing the senate party on the basis of also legislature, and then ratified in a popular referendum that presumably would be held next spring.

Ten years ago such a plan narrowly missed endorsement in a popular vote. In that decade the rural districts of the state have steadily lost population to the urban zones, which makes it fairly certain that the next referendum will lose also.

The importance of the revival of the "areacrat" principle lies in its providing a thread of hope, however thin, to those rural conservatives who are reluctant to pass population redistricting day even under the heavy pressure of the federal courts, because they dread urban and unsympathetic control of the state government.

Effective in 1970, Some legislators have said privately that they are not sure that a population districting act could be enacted today, without the concurrent encouragement provided in the area amendment.

Finally, the amendment to the constitution could be effective in actual redistricting only after the U.S. census of 1970.

Before that time the urban population majority of the state will be decisive, which would mean that any intervening legislature could move for the repeal of the amendment if it chose to do so and the city district representatives would inevitably be under pressure to do so.

Meager Discussion

The casualness of the discussion in the senate Tuesday on the area amendment probably betrayed the lack of confidence of even its authors in the proposition. No senator explained what effect the amendment would have in redistributing senate seats, and more significantly, no senator asked for an explanation. The best guess is that it would transfer three or four seats from what is now urban territory, in-

Words Heard Differently

'Yumping Yiminy,' That 'Yay' Is Hard to Say!

MONTREAL (AP) — The Frenchman says, "Eet ees veree eenteresting" and the Swede, who probably says, "Yumping Yiminy," wonders why the French never can pronounce a simple word like "it" properly.

The reason, says Prof. Andre Rigault of McGill University, is that the Frenchman never hears "it." He hears an Englishman say "eet," just as a Swede hears an Englishman say, quite distinctly, "yump."

There are national ways of hearing. Prof. Rigault told the Canadian Conference on Education during a forum on learning a second language.

Italy turns out so many good singers because Italians typically are sensitive to sounds in the frequency-range that all singers use. The Slavic people, and particularly the Russians, learn to speak other languages with hardly any accent or intonation because their ears are sensitive to an extraordinarily broad range of frequencies, a range so broad that it can take in almost any sound made in any language.

The Russian language uses practically every sound frequency possible to human speech.

Prof. Rigault, head of the McGill Language Laboratory, described the university's experiments with a French-made machine dubbed the "electronic ear."

Its main virtue is that it can scramble word sounds as if it had a foreign student attempting to reproduce that sound winds up speaking flawless English.

Long-Known Connection

The connection between hearing and speech has been long-established. It was first noted when children born deaf never learned to talk, although physically capable of it. From there, it was only a step to deduce that if you hear as badly, you will speak badly.

Prof. Rigault said studies by Dr. Alfred Tomatis of Paris have established that the "national ear" can be charted. Italians, for example, can distinguish extreme differences in sounds pronounced with it, but its use has been limited by expense and time.

Prof. Rigault said the overwhelming evidence is that the ear's sensitivity is the most important factor in pronunciation. "The speech organs are capable of rendering any sound a person can hear."

science building and teaching museum, and new programs such as special library book collections, international studies and distinguished campus visitors.

This magnificent conditional grant from the Ford Foundation gives us the greatest immediate opportunity in our history to strengthen our resources. Its strategic regional importance, standards and administrative effectiveness.

Three features characterize the Special Program, according to James W. Armsey, its director: "First, each grant is designed to strengthen the institution's total achievement, its academic and administrative effectiveness. Second, the grant may be used in any way that the recipient deems to advance its long-range goals—in short, it is $1.5 to $2.5 million, as part of the Foundation's Special Program in Education. Implicit in each grant requirement, was the challenge that recipients match the gift on either a 2-1 or 3-1 basis. Lawrence was given gifts from alumni, business and industry, and other donors, and pleasure, naturally, to accept this conditional grant. We now have the upgrading of facilities and continuing financial support." The objective of the special program, according to Foundation President Henry T. Heald, "is to build on excellence and realistic aspirations in a group of institutions with differing backgrounds, geographic locations and plans for the future. The Program is not an effort to rate the relative merits of universities and colleges or to reward past achievement. Other universities and colleges will be added as their programs for future development mature."

A total of 21 colleges throughout the nation received $41.6 million in support grants, ranging individually from $1.5 to $2.5 million, as part of the Foundation's Special Program in Education. WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., said today he will propose a constitutional amendment to permit prayer in the public schools.

"I was shocked by the decision of the Supreme Court," Beall said, "and I feel that legislation should be introduced immediately to reaffirm the nation's faith and trust in the Supreme Court."

In 1960 it made awards to Beall said he was checking the language of his proposed amendment with constitutional lawyers, but expected to introduce it in the Senate later this week.

He said the amendment proposed to declare in essence that nothing in the Constitution should be interpreted to "deny the right of any school to make available to its students periodic expressions of prayer or religious observance, provided that participation by students shall not be mandatory."

Beall said the Founding Fathers themselves had made clear their acknowledgement of a Deity, and that the principle has been restated with every currency issue bearing the words "In God We Trust" and in the pledge of allegiance to the flag with the words "under God."

Some Common Germs Antibiotic Resistant

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
CHICAGO (AP)—Verdict. death. His pictures show holes inside from a dose of antibiotic. The victims: some common with the drug are still intact. germs. Dr. Chapman described the changes in an exhibit today to the American Medical Association's annual convention. Why do some bacteria become resistant to the same antibiotic so they can still sicken or kill humans? A next step is to study strains of germs which resist the very antibiotics that kill their cousins. Do the resistant germs keep the answers. He slices the antibiotic from penetrating their dead germs into pieces about 1,000th of an inch thick and studies them under an electron microscope which can magnify objects 25,000 to 30,000 times their natural size.

Two Bacteria Types
Dr. George B. Chapman of Cornell University Medical College, New York City, finds that in two types of bacteria he has examined, the antibiotic gets inside the organism and destroys the nucleus. His pictures show holes inside the germs. Germs not treated with the drug get inside. Dr. Chapman described the changes in an exhibit today to the American Medical Association's annual convention. Why do some bacteria become resistant to the same antibiotic so they can still sicken or kill humans? He slices the antibiotic from penetrating their dead germs into pieces about 1,000th of an inch thick and studies them under an electron microscope which can magnify objects 25,000 to 30,000 times their natural size.

By learning how the drug works or fails to work, it could become possible chemically to design antibiotics that kill resistant germs. Such resistance to antibiotics is showing up in several kinds of dangerous bacteria.

A warning against giving children too much vitamin A was sounded by Dr. Charles N. Pease, Chicago orthopedic surgeon.

Excessive doses of the vitamin can slow or even stop bone growth, he said, reporting seven such cases of irreparable alterations in normal growth. Long bones of the body are very susceptible.

This bone trouble is rare, Dr. Pease said. The amount of vitamin A consumed in ordinary foods is safe. There's a large margin of safety between therapeutic doses of the vitamin and harmful amounts, he said.

Johnson admitted being at the scene and driving the car being sought by police. After skidding into the wreckage and putting her car in reverse gear, she claimed she remembered nothing until arriving at her home, according to Lutz.

A coroner's jury was drawn and examined the body and accident scene today. Coroner LeRoy Hughes said no inquest has been scheduled. The final decision on an inquest rests with Schmieder, who is out of the city and will return to Chilton this weekend.

Rep. Dominick V. Daniels, D-N.J., said, "I respectfully disagree with the Supreme Court. It may be very pleasing to the Communists and Mr. Khrushchev but to me it is far reaching and causes me great concern."

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., said, "If the Supreme Court were openly in league with the cause of communism, they could scarcely advance it more than they are doing now."

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said, "I always thought that this nation was essentially a religious one."

"I realize of course," he said, asking its affiliates across the country to watch for religious practices in local public schools.

The ACLU, which took an active part in bringing the prayer issue before the high court, said: "We are confident that as other more secular religious practices are brought to the court's attention, they likewise will be declared unconstitutional."

In New York, the American Civil Liberties Union said it was constitutional."

LODI, N.J. (AP)—Cindy, the room hotel suite of comedian Jerry Lewis and his wife, Patti, was looted of $185,000 in jewels Tuesday night while they were at a studio taping a television show.

Police said there was no sign of a forced entry into the apartment, which had been ransacked.

Lewis said his wife was most distressed about losing a pendant worth a couple of hundred dollars, which he gave her 18 years ago when they were married.

The jewelry was partly covered by insurance.

LODI, N.J. (AP)—Cindy, the room hotel suite of comedian Jerry Lewis and his wife, Patti, was looted of $185,000 in jewels Tuesday night while they were at a studio taping a television show.

Police said there was no sign of a forced entry into the apartment, which had been ransacked.

Lewis said his wife was most distressed about losing a pendant worth a couple of hundred dollars, which he gave her 18 years ago when they were married.

The jewelry was partly covered by insurance.

Police records indicated an estimated $300,000 worth of jewelry had been stolen from midtown hotels within the past two months.

There have been no arrests or recoveries in any of the cases.

Adlai Recites 'The History Of 100 Vetoes'

Hearing Account of Voting in the U.N. Angers Red Delegate

BY MILT FREUDENHEIM
Chicago Daily News Service

UNITED NATIONS — Adlai Stevenson calls it "The History of 100 Vetoes." In a few words it boils down 15 years of Soviet stone-walling.

Hearing the record of all those "nyets" strung out in a row made Russian Ambassador Platon D. Morozov so angry he accused Stevenson of playing a piano built by his Republican predecessor as U.N. chief delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge.

That's about as uncomplimentary a charge as the Russians have in their topsy-turvy book.

"Proud" of Vetoes

The Russians are "proud" of their vetoes, Morozov said, after casting number 100 last week to block Security Council peace-making efforts between India and Pakistan in Kashmir.

"The right of veto in the Security Council is not such a bad thing," the Russian also said, "but is rather a wise thing which compels even some great powers to keep their feet off the table, whenever they put them on the table in proper American fashion."

Replied Stevenson, "I wonder if he could have had me confused with someone else who has still other uses for shoes and tables."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev shocked world diplomats by pounding the table with his shoe during a 1960 United Nations session.

Membership Blocked

The 100 Soviet vetoes in the Security Council include:

—51 to keep out various nations seeking U.N. membership. Lebanon, 1958, five since 1960 on Kuwait and Korea still are barred, although many others have been let in after Western concessions to Moscow.

—13 to aid Soviet bloc assaults on independence of others, from Czechoslovakia, 1948, and Greece, 1946 and 1947, Korea, 1950, Indochina, 1954, Hungary, 1956, to the Congo, 1960.

—Six vetoes to bar U.N. probes have made possible the attempt of charges brought by the Soviets themselves — that the U.S. was bombing Red China in 1950, argued.

Peaceful Settlements

Other vetoes Stevenson said blocked Security Council moves to settle disputes peacefully.

Among them he cited four on Spain in 1946, one on Syria and Lebanon that year, two on Indonesian independence, one on the Berlin blockade, 1948, two on the Congo, one on India's seizure of Goa last year.

Also four Soviet vetoes on disarmament proposals.

"The right of veto," replied Stevenson, "is the cornerstone of the United Nations charter."

Without it, the council would have taken decisions that "would have made possible the attempt of charges brought by the Soviets themselves — that the U.S. was bombing Red China in 1950, argued."

Fast-Balling Earl Wilson Hurls No-Hit Bosox Victory

Ironically, He Beats Belinsky On Masterpiece

By JIM HACKLEMAN

With thunderbolt swiftness, almost matching the speed of his blazing fastball, Earl Wilson, has zoomed to glittering stardom from the ranks of baseball's lesser known performers.

At Boston's Fenway Park, Tuesday night, the Red Sox right-hander pitched the second no-hitter of the American League season—a 2-0 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels. Ironically, his defeated opponent was the year's other no-hit pitcher, fun-loving southpaw Bo Belinsky, who rocketed to fame with his masterpiece over Baltimore May 5.

Wilson, a strong-armed ex-catcher from Ponchatoula, La., allowed four men to reach base on walks and struck out five as he "just threw as hard as I could all the way."

He also gave himself all the support he needed with his second home run of the year.

Although his past record in seven previous seasons as a profes-

Billie Jean Moffitt Pulls Major Net Upset

Wimbledon Shocked By Margaret Smith's First Round Defeat

By JIM HACKLEMAN

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Billie Jean Moffitt, who dances the Twist to keep her weight down, may not win the Wimbledon Women's Tennis Championship, but she'll still have a place in the record books of the hallowed tournament.

Billie Jean—bespectacled and outspoken—pulled off the biggest upset in the history of the women's division at Wimbledon Tuesday when she eliminated top-seeded Margaret Smith of Australia in the first round, 1-6, 6-3, 7-5. It was the first time the top-seeded woman has been eliminated in the first round.

"Sometimes," the 5-foot-6 Billie admitted today, "my weight got up to 135 pounds. Then I've got to do something about it. The Twist is a pretty good way to keep it down."

"My weight can vary as much as 20 pounds. I have to watch it constantly and diet all the time."

Miss Smith practically blasted the 18-year-old Billie Jean off the court in the first set. But the Long Beach, Calif., girl came back with an inspired spell to take the second and then reeled off two more games for the great upset.

While Miss Smith struggled hopelessly with her confidence shattered.

Miss Moffitt started playing tennis in the public parks at the age of 11. Since then, such greats as Alice Marble have had a hand in her coaching. She is the only daughter of a California engineer.

In the next round Billie Jean

Low Burdette Hurls Braves to 2-1 Win

Shaw Duels Don Drysdale Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves made it two straight over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night as Low Burdette pitched a five hitter to gain his sixth straight victory, 2-1.

The skidding Dodgers dropped their fifth game in the last six starts, despite the fact that Sandy Koufax allowed only one earned run and struck out 13 men. Koufax, who was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth, sustained his second straight loss and now is 10-4 for the season.

Burdette, who hasn't lost since May 19, is 6-4. He held the Dodgers to three hits until the ninth inning when they got an infield single, a double and an infield out that gave them their only run.

The Braves scored their first run in the second inning. Del Crandall opened with a single, went to second when Koufax walked Joe Adcock, and scored on a single by Frank Bolling.

Milwaukee got its second run in the sixth when Henry Aaron got to first on an error by shortstop Maury Wills, advanced to third on Lee Maye's single and scored on Crandall's sacrifice fly.

Good fielding got Burdette off the hook several times. Brave infielders executed four double plays. Burdette was tough all the way, too, and no Dodger got as far as second base in the first eight innings.

In the ninth, however, Maury Wills led off with an infield single. Jim Gilliam then hit a sharp double to left-center and Wills went to third. It was the only extra base hit off Burdette. Willie Davis fled out and the runners held their bases but Wills scored.

Giants Regain NL Lead With Victory Over Redlegs, 6-5

St. Louis Wallops Cubs, 15-3; Phillies Beat Houston Twice

BY MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer

Al Dark is a genius.

Or so it seemed Tuesday night as events unfolded at San Francisco, where the Giants' manager came up with a series of maneuvers resulting in a 6-5, 10-inning victory over Cincinnati that sent the Giants back into first place in the National League.

Dark made his first move in the seventh inning when the Giants, trailing 4-0, loaded the bases with pitcher Jack Sanford due to bat. Dark looked down his bench for a pinch hitter and selected Ed Bailey, hitless in his last 17 trips to the plate.

Bailey hit a grand slam homer—the first by a pinch hitter this season.

In the 10th, Dark's pre-game strategy came into focus as Willie McCovey, inserted in the line-up against right-hander Joey Jay, opened with a single. Going to his reserves again, Dark sent previously benched Felipe Alou in to run for McCovey.

Alou broke from first as Orlando Cepeda rifled a single to right center, daringly rounded third as Vada Pinson fired the ball into the infield and beat Don Blasingame's relay, sliding under the tag with the winning run.

Back On Top

The triumph pushed the Giants back on top for the first time since June 8, a half-game ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who were limited to five hits by Low Burdette in a 2-1 Milwaukee victory.

Fast-Balling Wilson Hurts No-Hit Game

sional has been far from sensational, and despite his tendency toward wildness, Wilson has been highly regarded as a potential star by the Red Sox.

The tall, 220-pound Negro has shed the "potential."

Pitching also sparked elsewhere in the league. First place Cleveland salvaged a one game lead, in beating Detroit 3-1 on a combined four-hitter by Bob Hartman and Gary Bell and Al Luplow's 12th inning homer after being blanked on six hits by Jim Running in the opener of the doubleheader, 6-0. Camilo Pascual struck out twelve and Rich Rollins did some heavy slugging as runnerup Minnesota trimmed New York 5-0. Milt Pappas of Baltimore fired a four-hit, 1-0 victory over Chicago. And Kansas City rookie Dan Pfister won his first, edging Washington 2-1 with a six-hit performance.

All told, just 21 runs in six games—and four shutouts.

Like Belinsky, Wilson was an unlikely candidate for pitching stardom at season's start. He had been unimpressive in two previous short stays with the Red Sox—in 1959 and '60—and was no better than 9-14 with Seattle of the Pacific Coast League last year.

This season the strapping, 26-year-old had failed to go the distance in his nine starts before Tuesday night, although he had done well enough to win five of seven decisions.

Los Angeles' only real threat of a hit came in the ninth when leadoff man Billy Moran lifted a pop fly to short left which shortstop Eddie Bressoud snared with a running, over-the-shoulder catch. Only two Angels managed to reach second base.

Belinsky allowed just three hits in his seven innings but all three cost him. Wilson slugged his homer in the third, then singles by Pete Runnels and Carroll Hardy after an error gave Boston its second run.

First Appearance
Hartman made his first appearance for Cleveland since being brought up from the minors and held Detroit to three hits—including a homer and single by Bubba Morton—through 10 innings. Then Bell won it, allowing a harmless single over the last two. Sam Jones was the hard-luck loser, lasting until the 12th when he gave way to Ron Nischwitz after a single by Ty Cline. Luplow promptly broke the long-standing tie with his fourth hit of the game and fifth of the night—the two-run homer.

Bunning also had a duel with Pedro Ramos in the first game until the seventh, when Dick McAuliffe homered with one on for the second hit off the Indian right-hander. Rocky Calavito made it a Tiger rot with a grand slam against Ramos in the eighth. Bunning struck out 10.

Rollins, whose average had skidded from .360 to .328 with only three hits in his eight previous games, smashed homers his first two trips, both times with Lenny Green on base. Rollie Sheldon, lost.

Pascual, winning his 11th against four losses, spaced nine hits, and walked none. It was the 11th loss in their last 16 games for the Yankees, who are only two percentage points ahead of the fourth place Angels.

Fourth Place Angels
Baltimore won it in the last of the ninth against the White Sox and John Buzhardt when John Powell's single and two bunts loaded the bases and Charley Lau's 30-foot dribbler went for a hit. Pappas, now 8-3, pitched his fourth straight complete game.

Pfister turned in a six-hitter and the lone Washington run was unearned. Manny Jimenez, the league's top batter at .346, drove in the A's deciding run with a third inning double off loser Tom Cheney.

Decision on AFL Expansion Forthcoming

League Votes to Appeal Anti-Trust Suit With NFL

BOSTON (AP)—A decision on proposed expansion and the granting of two new franchises may be forthcoming today at the window of the American Football League's annual spring meeting.

While there was no indication at Tuesday's meeting when the expansion decision will be announced, it was believed some definite step—one way or the other—would be taken before the NFL's executive committee leaves Boston.

Representatives of three prospective franchises argued the merits of their areas before the committee Tuesday.

Kansas City, Atlanta and New Orleans are trying to bring the NFL into their areas. Only two teams are expected to win franchises damages due the American Football League.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said in New York he is fully confident the decision against the league's $10 million anti-trust suit will be upheld in every meeting that the eight-member executive committee had voted.

The appeal probably will not be unanimously to appeal the ruling until next winter or spring, said Baker.

against the veteran National Football League.

The unanimous vote was a surprise since New York Titans owner Harry Wismer and Buffalo Bills General Manager Dick Gallagher had said previously they hoped the court battle was at an end.

Apparently, they were swayed by Atty. Warren Baker's feeling that the founding AFL has a good chance of winning a reversal of the decision which found that the NFL did not have a monopoly.

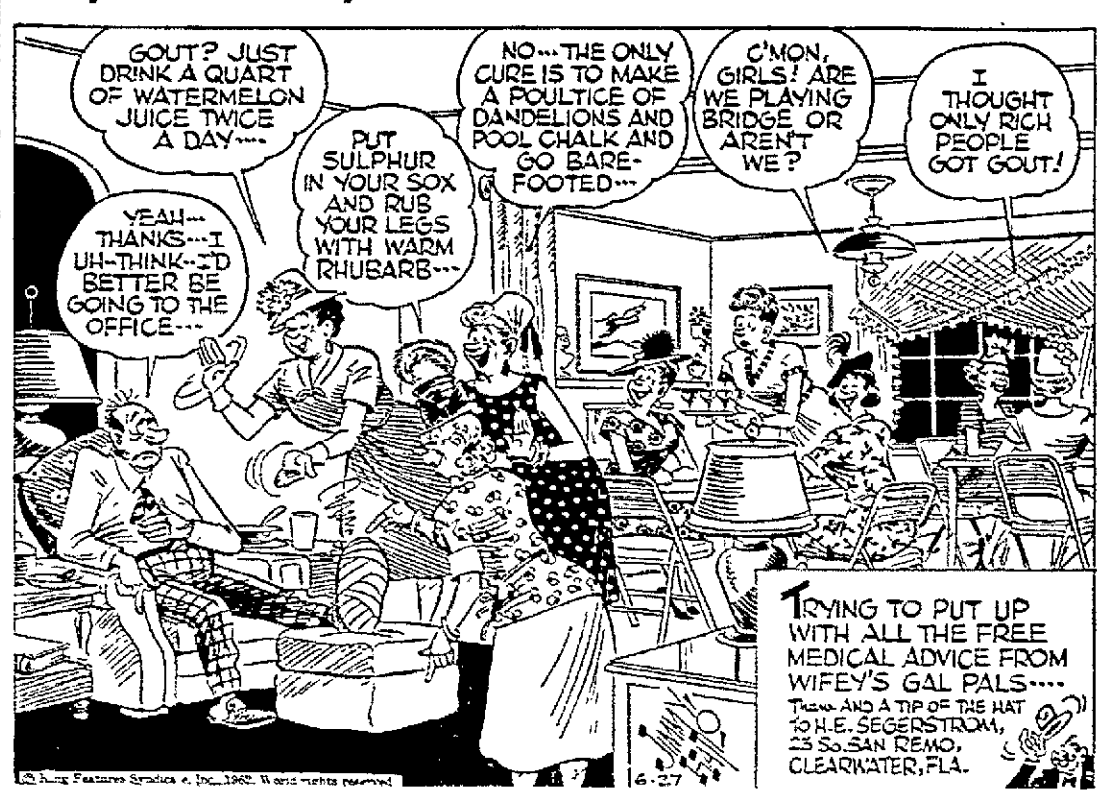

"We think the judge erred both in his factual findings and in his legal conclusions," said Baker. "We feel we have a reasonably good chance of winning the appeal."

The AFL suit alleged that the NFL conspired to keep AFL franchises out of key cities.

U.S. District Judge Roszel Thomsen ruled that though he felt the NFL was powerful enough to exclude the AFL from most any city it wanted to, it did not have a monopoly since there still were many cities where the AFL would not be barred.

Should the court of appeals find Judge Thomsen's finding, Orleans are trying to bring the NFL into their areas. Only two teams are expected to win franchises damages due the American Football League.

Newcombe Off to Auspicious Start in Japanese Pro League

NAGOYA, Japan (AP)—Newcombe already has had a good combe may be just the spark the effect on my team's pitching and Dragons need," wrote a baseball batting," declared Dragon Manager Takami Nonun.

Newcombe may well be considered "This is sweet music for Don as playing the role of a stimulant Newcombe, former Brooklyn homer (he says it was at least 40 feet), a double and two singles in 11 official at-bats. He's ering."

Dragons of Japan's Central League He's enjoying every note "I'm 100 per cent satisfied," he Newcombe said, "but I don't think it is right for me to say anything more than we anticipated My ($24,000) to give advice when wife has been provided with everything from diaper pins to an electric washer-dryer combination."

In three games he has hit a slider and curves. "Their control is amazing," he said, "but they are not overpowering."

Braves Sign Shortstop For Class D Farm Club

MILWAUKEE (AP) — James Driscoll, an 18-year-old shortstop from Arlington Heights, Mass., was signed to a Milwaukee Braves farm contract Tuesday.

Driscoll, 5-foot-11, 170 pounds, was assigned to the Dublin, Ga., club of the class D Georgia-Florida League.

He classified Japanese baseball as "near Triple A," and, is particularly happy over not coming here as a pitcher, although he may be used as one later in the season.

Japanese pitchers, if they're good, work nearly every day. Newcombe knows about too much work. He won 27 and lost 7 in 1956 and was the National League's Most Valuable Player.

As a rookie last year, Dragon right-hander Hiroshi Gondo compiled a 35-19 record as the team finished second.

He's won but nine games this season and complains of a sore arm. "That's understandable," Newcombe said, "but I don't think it is right for me to say anything more than we anticipated My ($24,000) to give advice when wife has been provided with everything from diaper pins to an electric washer-dryer combination."

Honor Richard Rodgers For Songs' Popularity

Cultural, Civic Leaders to Fete Composer, 60, at Birthday Lunch

NEW YORK (AP)—At 4 the lit-a head at 60—and working on a the boy reached up and touched new show."

At 6 he could play by ear, using the piano keys, and the sound thrilled him.

At 9 he was inventing melodies of his own.

And now, 1,000 tunes and 39 musical shows later, Richard Rodgers will be honored at a 60th birthday luncheon Thursday by cultural and civic leaders as one of the most popular composers in history.

Still Active

This landmark in his life finds him busy as ever. Broadway lights beam his latest hit, "No Strings," for which he wrote both words and music. Rodgers and his latest collaborator, lyricist Jay Lerner, now are working on a new and yet untitled show—his 40th.

"How do I feel?" asked Rodgers. "I feel ambivalent. "I hate being 60 from a chronological viewpoint, but I'm proud of being 60 and still functioning at what I love best.

"It is nothing to do a thing at 30, 35 or 40. But it's nice to have

To Old Fogey

His expression of habitual reserve broke into a wide, dark-eyed smile.

"It turns out that just because you were born in 1902, you're not necessarily just an old poop—at least I don't think I am."

Nobody in the musical world thinks Rodgers is either. The fount of his genius still flows as clear and tuneful as it did in his youth.

"Inspiration with me isn't a matter of mood, but a matter of work and application," he said.

"If I have published a thousand melodies, I must have thrown away at least a third that many more. But that doesn't bother me. It's no trouble. There's always more."

Always Something New

"I never felt I was running dry. I can't wait to try the next new project. I think of life as a continuing thing—and there's always something to look forward to."

Rodgers has been so creative that some people feel he must think in musical notes instead of words. He smiles at the idea.

"With me it's a matter of expressing in music what others express in prose, color or poetry," he said. "I don't really go around he said. "I don't really go around thinking in music—ever."

Of his own shows, he prefers

Pitcher Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers does a bit of singing to the accordion accompaniment of actor Jimmy Stewart during a break in the filming of an Alcoa Theater show in Hollywood. "Carousel," which many critics want to write a symphony, be also rate as his best. He has no cause I don't know how. "What I've tried to do is touch cause, "there are too many of people—and when I have, that has them, and they mean too many been my biggest satisfaction."

This is Rodgers' philosophy in his own words: "Have pleasure, give pleasure; I've got it made. But I have no avoid pain, and never knowingly big unrealistic ambitions. I don't give pain to others."

Top Producer Named General Administrator Of Reorganized Studio

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger L. Stevens, a leading Broadway producer, has been named general administrator in a reorganization of the Actors Studio.

Stevens joins Lee Strasberg and Cheryl Crawford in over-all supervision of the new Studio project to present plays in regular White Way engagements.

The first production is scheduled to be "Marathon 33" by June Havoc.

Music Top Activity

Bowling may be the nation's leading participative sport, but it still ranks second to amateur music-making in total popularity, according to the American Music Conference. More than 33,000,000 Americans were classified as amateur musicians in 1961—an increase of more than 70 per cent since 1950. Approximately 1,000,000 new amateur music makers are added to the total each year.

Felon Comes Back to His Crime Scene

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 (Channel 2) — The U. S. Steel Hour has a rather intriguing mystery-suspense story, with a good cast to bring it to life. "Scene of the Crime" accurately describes the story. We're in a pleasant boarding house where, 20 years before, a lovely girl was bludgeoned to death with a fireplace poker. Now the man who was convicted of the crime, Harry Townes, returns to the scene of the crime. It makes a good story, with an ending that leaves a little to your imagination.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 4-5) — Wagon Train repeats its only color show, which had the good sense to use Polly Bergen (blue eyes and all) in the starring role. Unfortunately, the plot isn't too beautiful and Miss Bergen isn't quite believable as a dedicated nurse. But if you have a color set, tune it in anyway. (Color)

7:30-8 (Channel 4-5) — For the balance of the summer, this spot will be occupied by re-runs of Nick Adams' old series, The Rebel. This is the one which stars the actor as a kind of 19th Century beatnik with a quick temper and a great big heart.

7:30-8:30 (Channel 2) — Checkmate's repeat introduced Jack Betts, who was to make occasional appearances as a detecting subcontractor for the firm. His assignment is to go into prison and contact Tony Randall, playing an egotistical brain who is

Little Things Important in Christian Life

Rev. Seidler Says Lives Must Reflect Teaching of Christ

"To understand the Christian way of life we must learn to recognize the importance of little things," the Rev. John Seidler told his congregation at St. John United Church of Christ Sunday.

These are things we are apt to pass up as insignificant because they are taken for granted and do not evoke public acclaim; yet, without which life loses its finest flavor and Christian faith becomes a mere sham," he said.

"Jesus came to proclaim the kingdom of God on earth," he went on. "In His teaching ministry He was vitally concerned with getting across to His followers the idea of what the Kingdom of God was and how it operated in the world. He spoke of it as being seemingly insignificant in appearance, yet containing the power of life and the means of man's eternal salvation: like the mustard seed that had within it the germ of greatness, or like the bit of leaven that had the power to permeate the whole loaf."

The marvels of the human hand

Why is any puncture of the skin of the hand dangerous? Why is the thumb so important? How many notes per second can a great pianist strike?

Read "The Marvels of the Human Hand," and you'll never again take for granted the marvelously complex instrument which sets man apart from beasts. July Reader's Digest is now on sale.

"Men came to Him with questions about vital issues and important decisions," the Rev. Mr. Seidler said. "What is the greatest of all laws?" asked a lawyer fervently. And when the fog of pretense was cleared away the answer resolved itself into a simple service of compassion and helpfulness to any one in need."

"What must I do to inherit eternal life? What do I lack?" asked an ambitious young ruler who had many possessions. And to his chagrin the final answer was a simple demand upon his charity to the poor and his following after Christ."

"The disciples, too, had difficulty throughout their years of training, in grasping the great significance of the common, humble tasks. They were human enough to be captivated by the glamour of 'big' things," he noted.

"Humble Yourselves"

"On several occasions they were caught arguing about which one of them was the greatest and should be accorded the most prominent position in the new kingdom," he pointed out. "Jesus took a little child and placed it into their midst. 'Here is your answer,' He said. 'Except you humble yourselves and become as little children you cannot even enter into the kingdom of God.'"

Jesus reprimanded the disciples for their ambition, telling them whoever would be greatest among them must be the servant, for even the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, he noted.

"The most valuable service that man can give to God is not in the performance of heroic deeds on the battlefields; nor in the signing of skillfully worked-out treaties in the nations' capitals, nor in the enactment of far-reaching laws in the halls of justice," he said.

In Everyday Life

"These all have their proper place in the annals of history, but there is little hope for their effectiveness unless the simple teaching of Christ has been put into practice in the common, everyday relationships of life among the common, ordinary people of the world. Prayer for the peace is a noble resolve, but all efforts on its behalf will be of no avail until each of us learns to pray, 'Lord, let there be peace, beginning with me.'"

"When we pray for God's kingdom to come on earth, the most important thing for us to remember is that it entails the doing, in Christ's name, of those little things that are of real service to mankind: a cup of cold water offered to a thirsty soul, a friendly visit to the lonely, the neglected and the discouraged; a comforting word and compassion-ate assistance to the stranger, the sick and the discouraged—even if our acts of benevolence are unobserved by the world," he said.

"These are only symbols of the true spirit that must control every aspect of our human relationships," the Rev. Mr. Seidler concluded. "Our lives will take on real meaning only when we begin to recognize the importance of the little things in the Christian sense."

College Plans Fund Drive

Lakeland Launches $9,000,000, Ten-Year Expansion Program

SHEBOYGAN — Lakeland College is launching a formal development program calling for $2,400,000, representing the first phase of a 10-year plan which will ultimately require $9,000,000. Dr. Arthur M. Krueger, Lakeland president, announced the program.

The immediate objectives of the college, according to Dr. Krueger, for which funds are now being solicited are a men's dormitory, a college union-dining hall, a science hall, a women's dormitory, a library addition, outdoor athletic facilities, roads and landscaping, miscellaneous campus improvements and an endowment fund to increase faculty salaries.

Development Office

A development office has been established at the college to carry the appeal for building and endowment funds to alumni, foundations, corporations and friends of the college.

Federal Loan

Dr. Krueger pointed out that the loan of $900,000 recently granted Lakeland by the federal Home and Housing Finance Agency will provide the cost of construction of the first two objectives—the men's dormitory and the college union-dining hall—and means the achievement of approximately two-fifths of the first phase program. The start of construction on these two units is planned for early fall, with a target date for occupancy and service of September, 1963.

"We are now in position to concentrate our efforts on securing funds for a new science hall, then the action begins. If one of your beanbags scores a direct hit, sends in one of the neatest, most original of all. The Beanbag Buccaneers Games will be awarded to those five.

To enter the contest you must fill the word square printed above with the correct letters so the first row spells the opposite of "girl," the second row spells a number and the third row spells an affirmative answer.

Print the letters in the squares, clip out the picture, paste it on paper or a postal card, print your name, age and address beneath it, then decorate it in the neatest, most original way you can figure out. The final step is to address your entry to Cappy Dick's Midwest Contest and the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Names of the prize winners will be published here and their prizes will be sent to them by mail. Decisions of the contest winners from all other cities judges will be final. All entries become the property of Cappy Dick and none can be returned. (Copyright 1962)

Former National 'Hobby' Winner Gets Local Prize

Teddy Reinke, a national winner in the Young Hobby Club's tulip coloring contest in March, has won again. This time the Bear Creek boy, 11, is a local winner in the wild animal contest published in the Post-Crescent on Wednesday, May 30, and receives a pack of "Phantom Cards."

The four other winners in the contest are Gregg Graverson, 12, 905 Harrison, Neenah, Richard Edwards, 9, Stead Dr., Menasha, Sharon Thompson, 11, 500 East Main, Weyauwega, and Judy Garvey, 12, R.R. 1, Kaukauna.

James Shipman Home Defined by Spacious Contemporary Design

An Indoor Garden is one of the attractive innovations in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Shipman. The home is spacious and dramatic and keyed to a family entertaining. The home is located on the lake and is one of five outstanding homes to be toured in the John Nelson Bergstrom Museum Association tour of homes Friday. The theme of the show is to show how art, color and individual taste may be used to give a home the personality of its owners. The museum will also be toured that day and will feature the world-renowned paperweight collection of Mrs. Bergstrom.

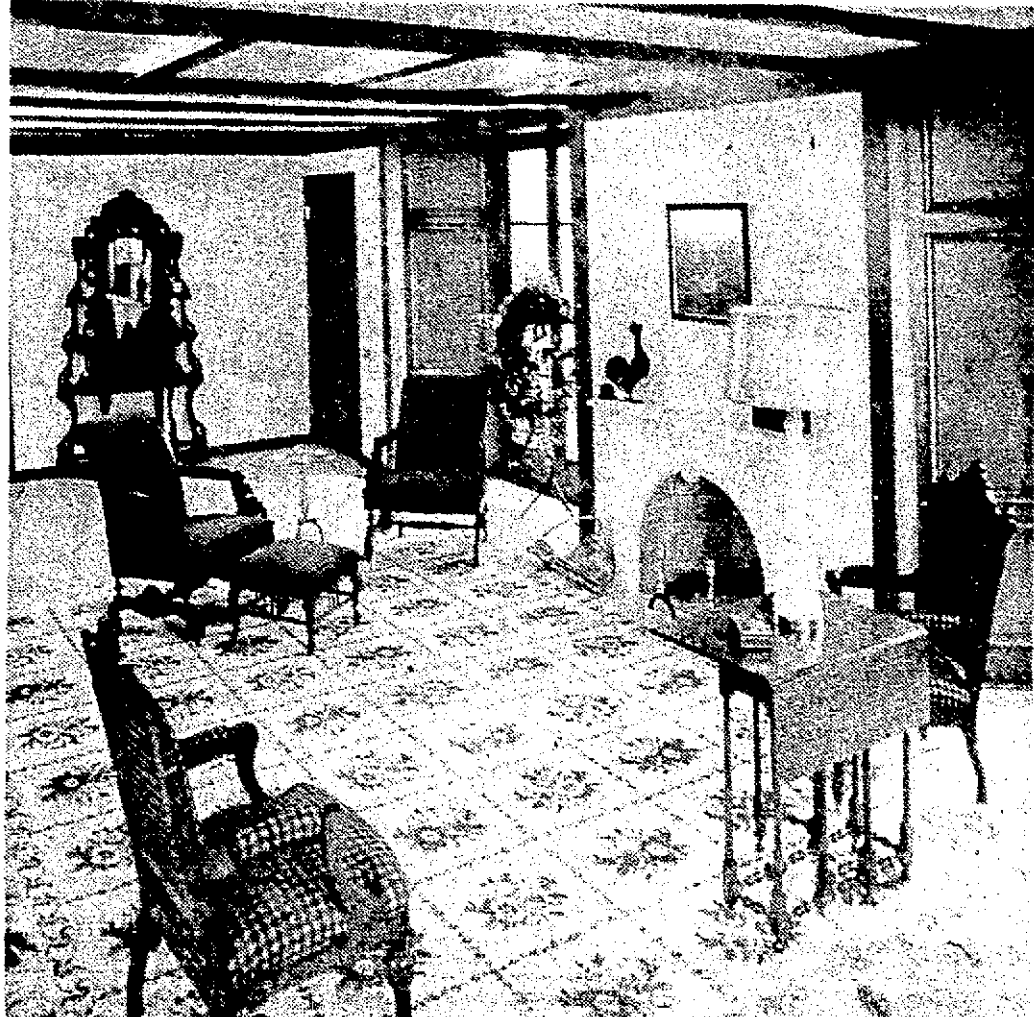

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Shipman, 630 Wheeler St., Neenah, is one of five that will be shown when the John Nelson Bergstrom Art Center tour is held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday. Other homes open to guests of the Community Association of the Art Center are those of Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Mahler, East Forest Ave., Neenah; Mr. and Mrs. Fredric O. Leech, 825 E. Forest Ave., Neenah; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wilterding, 393 Willow Lane, Menasha, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Shepard, 411 Lake Road, Menasha.

An open house and tea will be held all day Friday at the museum during tour hours.

General chairman is Mrs. Charles Buchanan, Appleton.

Bittersweet, Kelly Green and gold are the predominating colors in the formal living room of the James Shipman home, Neenah. The rug, custom designed for the room, was hand-made in Hong Kong. The furniture was also custom-designed for the room, and incorporates the predominating colors of the rug. The room at left is a sitting room which faces the Indoor Garden of the Shipman home. It is reminiscent of the vieux carre or old French Quarter, of New Orleans. The antique marble fireplace dates from 1840 and was originally in the McMillen home in Fond du Lac. The furnishings are antique pieces from the families of Mr. and Mrs. Shipman. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Complete Refinishing Procedures

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: We want to completely re-finish our living room, from top to bottom. In what order should this be tackled?

A: The proper order is from top to bottom: Do the ceilings first, then the walls and woodwork, finally the floors. When using a ladder in front of a door, be sure the door is locked, to prevent someone's unwittingly opening it in a hurry.

Grease on Brick Veneer

Q: We have a brick veneer home and some kitchen grease accidentally got spilled on it. How can the grease be removed?

A: Make a thick paste of powdered whiting or other absorbent powder and a liquid nonflammable spot remover and cover the greasy area with a layer of the paste, placing a sheet of thin plastic over this to retard evaporation. When the paste becomes dry or discolored, replace with fresh, continuing treatment until all grease is removed.

White Split Rock

Q: What is a recommended cleaner for white split-rock facing? This rock has been darkened by dirt mostly splattered by rain. I was told this could be acid washed. If so, what is the proper procedure?

A: Cleaning preparations for use on stone and masonry surfaces are widely available at masonry supplies dealers and some large hardware stores; follow label directions for use. I don't recommend using acid just for removing this type of surface soil. Scrub with a stiff brush and a scrubbing powder or detergent. Then rinse off thoroughly with clear water (garden hose is excellent for removing cleaner for stone surface).

Black Specks on Sills

Q: We built a new home about two years ago at the cost of $20,000. For some time, especially on a warm day, we have noticed tiny black specks come in four of my window sills and get on the glass. They look like fly specks, but the tiny ones are greyish; so small I can't see any legs, but they seem round. I have used insecticide and cleaners with no effect. What are these tiny mites and are they very damaging? What can we do to eliminate them?

A: These may be clover mites which are so tiny they are scarcely visible to the naked eye. For positive identification and elimination, I suggest calling in a reputable exterminator. Clover mites feed and breed in grass and other plants and seem more prevalent on new property. They do no damage to homes, but sometimes cause a skin irritation if they crawl over the skin. Insecticide (miticides) should be sprayed in shrubbery close to the house and on grass in a 10-foot strip around the building. Use pyrethrum contact spray.

Q: I'd like to make a below-el- bow length sleeve with elastic in it. How do I sew the casing and insert the elastic? Miss B. W.

A. Turn your sleeve to the wrong side. Then make a hem deep enough for the width elastic you are using to run through. Stitch the hem, leaving 1 inch open near the seam. Cut your elastic 1/2 inch longer than the your arm. Insert the elastic into the casing, using a safety pin to pull it through. Overlap the two ends of the elastic and whip stitch them together securely. Then, hem the casing opening closed. (See illustrations).

Q: Is there any other way to shorten a permanently pleated skirt but at the waistline? Also, how does one make a hem in this type of skirt? Mrs. J.A.

A. First, let's get one thing straight. You don't shorten a pleated skirt from the waist, not ever! If you do, you'll find that the skirt is much too large at the waist as you raise it. Actually, shortening a pleated skirt is very simple. Turn your hem as you would any other hem with the pleats spread out. Just be sure that the pleat creases coincide when you are stitching. The annoying part of this procedure is pressing the pleats back in at the hem. You'll have to baste them in first, or pin them to the ironing board, four or five at a time, as you press. Your iron will probably have to be adjusted to a high setting.

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

FALSE MODESTY
What do you think of a masculine guest who asks his widowed hostess where the bathroom is? This happened to me recently and I have never been more embarrassed in my life. In my youth, a gentleman would never have asked a lady such a thing.

Davis
Louise Davis Answers.
Your embarrassment smacks of modesty and false modesty. Surely your guest didn't hold his question across the room to you in the presence of other people. Rather than prowl around your home he asked you because there was no host. I do think, however, that a better phrase might have been, "Where may I wash my hands?" If there had been other gentlemen present, he could have asked one of them. Here is a case where common sense must be applied. A thoughtful hostess would find some way of saying to a first-time guest on his arrival, "If you wish to wash your hands, the bathroom is at the end of the hall." Through the process of social evolution since the turn of the century, people don't even flinch any more over such words as bathroom, leg, pregnant, corset

Bait Your Opponent

The wicked flee when no man pursueth, we are told. It's a bad habit for bridge players. South ruffed the second heart, led a trump to dummy and ruffed another heart. He continued with a second trump to dummy and then led a low diamond toward his hand. South wasn't actually looking for any wickedness. He planned to take the ace of diamonds and return the ten of diamonds in the hope of winning a trick with dummy's queen. If West had the king of diamonds, dummy's queen would become a trick; otherwise, South would have to rely on a 3-2 break in clubs. It was at this moment that my's queen was good for a club discard. South could easily reach dummy with a trump, and the contract was home despite the bad club break. While we're sniffing at East's wickedness, let's give South credit for good camouflage. By entering dummy with a trump and leading the first diamond from dummy, South gave the impression that he intended to finesse through East. He actually had no such intention, but was glad to change his mind when East gave himself away. Daily Question Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold S 5 3 H A 8 7 5 2 D K J 8 6 2 C 9. What do you say? Answer Bid two diamonds. You plan to raise hearts next, all the way to game if necessary to make sure of reaching game. The hand is too strong for an immediate jump to four hearts since such a jump is intended to discourage any try for a slam. (Copyright, 1962)

Mrs. C. F.: "We're confused about the size of a mirror to go over the mantel of our rather small fireplace. A neighbor says that it should be almost as wide as the fireplace, but can be wider than it is high. We were also told that it needn't be so wide, but should be tall. We want a mirror that's large enough to make the fireplace more important, but wonder if we were thinking of too large a size. The fireplace opening is framed with wood columns painted white and we'd like the mirror frame in a dull gold finish." Height is needed for the mirror

Practical Wall Covering

A hardy wall covering gives a kitchen a practical wall surface. When it's in a small all-over pattern, it makes wall irregularities less conspicuous while it decorates attractively. In this kitchen corner, a plastic-coated wall covering solves problems of the kind Mrs. J. T. writes about, which she faces as her old house is remodeled. Her walls can't be as irregular as these, but she, too, is installing an extra kitchen inexpensively in an odd space, as the owner of this kitchen did.

The wall covering is used everywhere, Mrs. T., even on the ceiling, and grease - resistance and easy washability makes it especially practical above the range and sink. In checks, the strips are easy to match at edge joinings despite all the joggings and curves, and the room benefits from enough cheerful yellow and white decoration to need little else. The rough spots on the projection you mention must be smoothed if they indent or raise the wall surface, but the wall covering is heavy enough to conceal slight roughness

Husband Has No Sympathy For Overzealous House Cleaner

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS. My wife shoved one of your recent columns in my face and said "See, Ann agrees with me." It was the letter from the woman who knocked herself out from 5 a.m. until midnight. She had two jobs, two kids and I think two heads. Her signature was "Half Dead."

My wife is usually "Half-Dead," too—and I say it's her own fault. I've begged her not to climb on the walls and wash behind (the pictures). I've pleaded with her not to stand on her head to polish the woodwork. Our garbage pails are so clean a doctor could store his surgical equipment in them. Every Sunday she has a ritual—polishing silver. And do you know how often we use it? Only when the Duke and Wally come to visit us.

After dinner she washes and massages the dishes until 11:30 p.m. Of course, by the time she gets to bed she's exhausted. I say these crazy-clean nuts do this to themselves. Their husbands are not the villain at all.—Second Side

Dear Second Side: Here is the Third Side: Experts in the field say that wives who knock themselves out after dinner (sterilizing the dishes, baking, ironing, etc.) may actually be hiding from their husbands and at the same time providing themselves with a martyr-like excuse to fall into bed exhausted.

You should see a marriage counselor (together) and find out why—and what to do about it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS. I am a teenager who needs help. I took my driving test last week and flunked it. I cried for two solid hours and couldn't eat one bite of dinner.

My sister wisecracked that I must be an imbecile. I think maybe she's right. She said every nut and his cousin drives a car—and here I'm so stupid I couldn't even pass the test.

I've been practicing for months, them!

Ann, and I really am a good driver. I just didn't know the answers to some of those questions. I'm so embarrassed over this I can't face people. And now I'm afraid to take the test again because if I flunk it a second time I'll just have a nervous breakdown.

Have you ever heard of a normal person flunking a driving test? Please tell me what to do.

I'm—Shook
Dear Shook: Cheer up, Chick. You've got plenty of company. A lot of bright people flunk their first driving test.

And what makes you think that everyone who passes is "normal"? Have you ever seen Los Angeles, or Chicago drivers at 4:30 p.m.? This is "normal?"

My advice is to bone up. Reread the manual and memorize the answers. Then, as soon as possible, go down and take the test again. There's no disgrace in failing. The only disgrace is not keeping at it until you make the grade.

DEAR ANN LANDERS. I've been a widow for two years. I'm not a spring chicken but I certainly am not old. I'm very selective about the company I keep and I have gone out with some fine gentlemen.

The man I like best is a bachelor with whom I work. He has asked me out to lunch almost every day for the past year. At first I thought this meant that he was interested, but now I'm not sure. He always brings a newspaper or a magazine along and reads throughout the entire lunch. We hardly exchange a word.

If the man isn't interested in me why does he invite me to lunch every day? If he is interested, why doesn't he talk to me? Shall I make an issue of it? If so, how?—Mute Companion

Dear Companion: You say nothing about dates in the evening or on weekends. Do you ever have a meal together other than lunch? If so, does he read then, too?

If you are regularly separated by a wall of paper, that wall might as well be 10 feet high and made of solid concrete. Tell him goodbye and happy reading.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Facts Say Women Might be Smarter

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Have women been "smarter" in handling their stock transactions than men in the past few years and thus, made more and lost less? Or have they perhaps been "luckier" than men, because they didn't get in on the hot-hot new issues and over-priced glamor stocks in 1961 and so they've not been per cent. The division between the sexes is more even now than at any time during the previous decade.

There's more than a suspicion that the answer to at least the second question, if not the first, is of the total population of adult males are stockholders compared.

The evidence lies in the latest with 14.9 per cent women. In 1959, ground of a shareholder population skyrocketing 4.5 million just stocks by women and by men, disclosed yesterday in the fourth and most comprehensive survey group, where they outnumbered men by nearly 500,000. Men, though, account for a higher proportion than women in the most active ages of 21 to 54.

Here are the statistics and following is a logical interpretation leading to the above provocative comment.

Statistic: Today, women account for 51 per cent of the total adult shareholder population. In 1959 women shareholders outnumbered men by 52.5 to 47.5 per cent, and in 1956 by 51.4 to 48.6 per cent. The division between the sexes is more even now than at any time during the previous decade.

Statistic: Today, 15.6 per cent of the total population of adult males are stockholders compared with 14.9 per cent women. In 1959, ground of a shareholder population skyrocketing 4.5 million just that of men by a slim margin.

Statistic: Nearly 5.5 million housewives are shareholders, up since 1959 to a record 17 million from 4 million in 1959, and housewives are the largest single group of shareholders. But as far as the percentage of the total goes, the housewife group has risen only from 33.1 per cent in 1959 to 33.6 per cent now.

Statistic: Women lead most men in the 65-and-over age group, where they outnumber men by nearly 500,000. Men, though, account for a higher proportion than women in the most active ages of 21 to 54.

Statistic: More than twice as many women as men — 1.5 million to 713,000 — obtain their first share of stock through inheritance or gifts.

Majority of New Holders: Statistic: Among the shareholders who have entered the market for the first time since 1959, 55 per cent are women, a 1961.

Put all these statistics together, place them against the background of a shareholder population skyrocketing 4.5 million just between 1959 and 1962 climbed substantially.

The new issues and glamor stocks have been the securities which have taken the severest licking and hurt their owners the most.

Perhaps the reason women didn't play the new issues in 1961 is that they weren't on brokers' preferred lists and didn't get the chance. Perhaps the reason is that they didn't know what was going on in the glamor stocks because women at home don't get the variety and quantity of tips that husbands get in their offices.

Perhaps the reason is that an elderly widow who has inherited her securities is naturally more conservative than a young man in his 20s or 30s — and she should be.

Whatever the reason or combination of reasons, the fact is that the percentage of women to men shareholders has dwindled for the first time in these past few years — and this has been a period of the worst stock market crackup in modern times. Smart-er? Luckier? You decide.

(Copyright 1962)

Wednesday, June 27, 1962 Appleton Post-Crescent C10

Men Are Gamblers: Obviously, the individuals feverishly gambling in new stock issues and bidding up the glamor stocks to fantastic levels last year were primarily men. Otherwise, the percentage of women to men shareholders would not have dropped as it did. The census itself includes a footnote that "data assembled suggests that many more men than women participated in the unusual stock market activity in the spring of 1961."

Obviously too, a lot of women men shareholders in 1959 were no longer shareholders at the time of the 1962 census. This is the only explanation for the fact that, while 55 per cent of new shareholders since 1959 have been women, the proportion of men in between 1959 and 1962 climbed substantially.

The new issues and glamor stocks have been the securities which have taken the severest licking and hurt their owners the most.

The circus section will include several bands and bandwagons, camels, elephants and other animals, clowns, and two calliopes. The Disney wagons donated to the Circus World Museum in Baraboo will be in the parade if they arrive in time.

The convention is meeting in Baraboo Thursday through Sunday. The Ringling Circus is scheduled to arrive in Baraboo Monday for a two week layover.

Paper Industry Can Compete, Executive Says

St. Regis President Urges Free Trade in Talk at Institute

The American paper industry can compete in any country and welcomes free trade, William R. Adams, president of St. Regis Paper and Pulp Association, said in Appleton Tuesday.

Adams spoke at the Seventh Industry Seminar at the Institute at Morey's Bar in the Town of Adams.

He said labor costs in Western Europe, specifically the Common Market, are rising and indicated that U.S. producers' advantage might therefore increase.

Adams said the fact that 4 per

Man Not Blamed For $8,450 Fire to Neighbor's Home

An Appleton man who was burning trash in an uncovered trash barrel has been absolved of blame in an $8,450 fire to his neighbor's house.

Rudolph E. Voll, 727 E. Franklin St., was declared not responsible for causing fire damage to a roof of a home owned by Mrs. Blanche Jannes, 731 E. Franklin St. on March 28, 1959. The case was heard by a 12-man jury in Circuit Court Tuesday and today.

The court ruled Voll was negligent in following a city ordinance requiring that his trash container, which was in the Voll backyard, was not adequately covered.

The jury, however, ruled the roof fire could not have started from sparks from Voll's trash burner and further ruled that Voll was maintaining a careful watch on the fire.

Barman Sorry But Says Noise Must Go on

An Appleton tavern owner has informed police he is sorry his customers make noise and disturb the neighbors, but he doesn't intend to do anything about it.

Norbert Klein, a partner in the Klein Bros. Tavern, 1920 N. Meade St., told police his tavern was established long before most of the homes in his neighborhood and that his tavern is run "to please the customers and not the neighbors."

Police were sent to the tavern Monday night after neighbors complained of excessive noise coming from the tavern. Police found noise could be heard 300 feet away. All the doors and windows were open, and customers were keeping time to a small orchestra by clapping, hollering, stamping their feet and ringing cow bells, police said.

Klein said the noise was in celebration of his and a brother's birthday anniversaries.

Klein regretted the noise kept the neighbors awake, but told police the tavern was the livelihood for nine people and that if the customers wanted to make noise, the tavern owners would not try to prevent it.

Police brought no charges.

Convicted Red Spy, Dr. Soblen, Reported Missing

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Robert A. Soblen, convicted spy who is due to surrender for a life sentence Thursday, was reported missing by his wife, the government said today.

Soblen, 62, was convicted of spying for the Soviet Union. The government said his wife, Allean Sonkowsky, asked for the road appears to be a through streets were installed makes it look like the street extends to Northland Avenue, the committee was told.

Bids Opened Tuesday Show Price Could be $21,000 Under Estimated $330,000

Appleton's proposed 256-car parking ramp at the southwest corner of Division and Washington streets may cost about $21,000 less than estimated, it was learned Tuesday when the board of public works opened bids for the structure.

Apparent low bids for the four phases of construction total $308,857, compared to an estimated cost of $330,000.

The final cost of the ramp will be determined by which of several alternates are chosen in the general contract, such as whether the upper level should be covered with an asphalt mat. The architects and city engineering department will make a recommendation to the board of public works.

Apparent low bidder for the general contract is Meyer Corp., Neenah, with a base bid of $277,812. There were five other offers. The highest was for $312,200.

The only bid received for electrical work is from Superior Electric, Appleton, for $17,754.

Speed Control Signs Denied

Believe Too Many Would Only Confuse Motorists in City

Appleton's public safety committee Tuesday denied a resolution by Ald. Derald Ahrens asking for reduced speed signs around City Park.

Committeemen felt that a multiplicity of warning signs only confuses the public and defeats the purpose for which they were intended.

It was pointed out that only Drew Street, on the west side of the park, carries heavy traffic, and that the volume of traffic is great only during the noon and late afternoon rush hours.

The committee asked that the police department patrol the streets during rush hours to see that there is no speeding.

Signs Approved

A request to place reflectorized signs at the deadend of N. Owassa Street was approved. Ald. Sonkowsky asked for the signs, he said traffic is trespassing on private property, because of the road appears to be a through street. Gravel hauled in when utilities were installed makes it look like the street extends to Northland Avenue, the committee was told.

'This Was My Time to Grow Up,' Draws Lonely Hearts Victim

BY JEAN OTTO
Post-Crescent Women's Editor

"I believe there's a time in every woman's life when she either grows up or goes backwards. And this is mine. There's no more little girl in me. I've really grown up."

The young woman who spoke these words is 17. She has reddish brown hair pulled back from her face by a pink headband, and freckles on her arms. She talks with an accent and a soft voice. She's in jail, charged with passing worthless checks.

The slender girl came here from West Virginia. One sign of her maturity is that she blames no one for the predicament she's in. "No one made me do it, she says. "It's my own fault."

Not Back Home

She is speaking of the circumstances which brought her to Appleton and then to jail. The girl doesn't want to go back-home. She wants to stay right here and start her life over and show people she's not what they think, that she's not bad.

Miss Frances Sue Williams was the oldest of eight children. Her mother gave away all but two, and the girl revealed a sensitive and painful spot when she said that she would have felt better if she had given them all away. When she was five years old she was taken into a foster home.

She calls her foster mother 'Mommy' when she tells how close they are and how good her foster parents have been. If 'Mommy' knew she was in trouble she would come to help her. "I'm well liked at home" she says.

'I Was Lonesome'

Miss Williams grew up in an eight-room house, sometimes with four foster brothers and sisters, sometimes with 17 or 18. She helped care for these children who came to live with them.

"I loved to help," she said, "because they were so good to me. Mommy says I was the only one of the kids that ever treated her nice. I guess I was a 'pet.'" she smiled.

The girl says she read the name of an Appleton man in a lonely hearts column in a magazine. "I was lonesome," she said, "so I wrote."

The man answered right away. He didn't actually say he was young. "He went around a daisy way," she relates, in describing that he implied he was young. He also said he was wealthy and owned about 20 homes in the city. When he proposed marriage it seemed like a chance to make a nice life. The men at home "are all poor and don't have nothing. I could have married at home, but I thought this would be better."

The man sent her an airline ticket. . . and she was air-sick all the way to Appleton. She says she cried when she saw how old the man was, the way he was dressed and how he lived. She spent two days cleaning his house, throwing away stacks and stacks of papers, scrubbing and cleaning.

She was willing to stay with her bargain however, and told him she would marry him. The man said he wanted to live with her but not marry her. Miss Williams refused.

'Couldn't Stomach It'

She said she's young and could have children, and wouldn't bring them into the world without a name. She asked him to send her home. He refused. "You're here now. You stay."

After two days, Miss Williams said she could stomach no more, and got a job babysitting for the child of a working couple.

It was then that her troubles became worse, I wrote the bad check as a sort of a dare," she said, "but I don't blame nobody. I should have said 'no' and I didn't."

"I was so skeered and nervous when I went to the police station. But everyone treated me real nice, and I told the truth from the first thing."

Miss Williams has many regrets. She's sorry about how things worked out with the man. She wants to pay him back his money and maybe a little more for his trouble. She says it's awful to steal but she did it and she can't undo it.

Know Him First

And Miss Williams is sorry for answering the ad in the first place. She feels it's really wrong for girls to answer letters from men they don't know. "You should find a man and know him before you say you'll marry him," she asserts. She hopes maybe some other girl will learn from her.

The girl says she understands what she did and that it was wrong. Perhaps she could find a job, doing housework and taking care of babies, and go to school one day a week to 'get educated.' She's a proud little person, 'too ashamed to go back and live with my family.'

Plant Expansion To Take Care of Twin City Sewage

State Official Says Some Waste
Will Bypass $2 Million Project

NEENAH — The $2 million expansion and secondary treatment plant that the mills were checked each facility to be added at the Neenah Menasha sewage disposal plant will take care of the sewage that goes to the plant but there still will be some bypassing of the plant O J Muegge director of the environmental sanitation section of the State Board of Health told a citizens group here Tuesday.

He repeated his belief that the best solution to the sewage problem for the Fox Cities area was a metropolitan sewer district with all of the sewage being treated at a plant below Kaukauna.

Labor, Management Officials Air Views at OSC Conference

Speakers Disagree On Unemployment, Labor Legislation

OSHKOSH — An Oshkosh labor leader and the personnel director of Rockwell Standard Corp. disagreed Tuesday on the causes of unemployment and on needed labor legislation.

Elmer Zarnott, international representative of the UAW union at Rockwell Standard, B. F. Gunz, Jr., director of personnel at Rockwell Standard and Lawrence R. no president of the Winnebago Council of Labor, participated in a panel discussion at the close of the Labor Management Relations Institute at Oshkosh State College.

Zarnott said he was not sure this country is ready for automation as it is being forced upon the worker. We cannot live in pride in workmanship with automation.

"Unemployables." We are no longer in the traditional industrial revolution, Zarnott said, but in a revolution where the machine not only replaces the muscle but also the brain.

Gunz said he did not think unemployment could ever be eliminated because of what he termed "the unemployable." He said about 25 per cent of job applicants at Rockwell Standard have not finished high school.

'Maturing' Relations Labor Legislation

OSHKOSH — The answer to automation is total employment, Dr. H. Edwin Young, dean of the College of Letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin, said Tuesday at the Oshkosh State College sponsored Institute on Labor Management Relations.

Speaking about maturing labor management relations, Dr. Young said we cannot expect on any certain people to bear the total cost of automation. New jobs must be provided either in the same or in other industries.

Sometimes the public expects too much from both management and labor, Dr. Young added. Labor and management leaders sometimes must take stands which they themselves do not like.

Unique. Dr. Young noted the American labor movement is unique in that it is not revolutionary. The role of management, he said, is to be as efficient as possible and successfully produce, sell and be competitive. This very process of being efficient means automation, he added.

As a result of this, the role of the union is to humanize management. Labor shares with management the government of industry, Dr. Young contended.

Menasha Board Discusses Ways To Get Doctors

Education Board
Wants Medical Aid
For Football Games

MENASHA — Can the Board of Education use means just short of causing public scorn to influence physicians to attend Menasha High School home football games?

The question was incompletely and inconclusively debated Tuesday by part of the board in an informal manner since a quorum was not present.

Ted Neely, whose term expires Saturday, argued that asking the medical men to attend the 10 or 11 varsity junior varsity and freshman football games a year is "not realistic." He claimed it takes seven or eight days to get an appointment with a doctor. It is not reasonable to ask them to spend three hours (at games) in the event of an accident. This would put the doctors in the area on the spot. There is no call to put them in the position to accept or refuse.

On the other side, Thomas Woodrow felt that the board at least should ask the local medical group to try to set up a voluntary schedule to attend games on the grounds that a doctor has an obligation to society beyond that economically rewarding to him. It would not be much of a sacrifice.

Industries were asked not to discharge their industrial wastes for a certain period to the sewage disposal plant so that a test of the plant's filtering efficiency could be obtained. Various mills then were told to send their industrial wastes to the plant again at particular times.

Beside this fish kill, some residents along Little Lake Butte des Morts have been complaining about the water's condition. This condition they contended is the result of bypassing of raw sewage at the disposal plant and of an oily slick getting into the water.

Cities Under Orders. City Engineer Melvin Noth of Menasha outlined that both Neenah and Menasha are under orders by the state for additional treatment facilities and that these are now being designed. The plant is doing about as well as can be expected for a primary treatment plant and when there are excessive flows it has to bypass some sewage.

This is common to most plants, Noth stated. The plant is right about up to capacity for normal conditions in primary plants. Secondary treatment should decrease the biochemical oxygen demand by about 90 per cent of what it is now.

Wisniewski cited the two cities had applied for federal aid toward the $2 million project estimate cost but that such aid can not be granted until the design plans have been completed. These plans are now being prepared.

Firemen say the blaze may have been caused by a cigarette.

Walter Schirra Will be Next U. S. Spaceman

Astronaut's Flight Late This Summer May Have 3 Orbits

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced today that the next manned orbital flight will be planned for as many as six orbits, sometime later this summer, with astronaut Walter Schirra as the pilot.

D. Brainerd Holmes, manned space flight director of the civilian space agency, said the decision as to the specific mission—that is, how many orbits will actually be made—will depend upon many technical factors which will be evaluated constantly up to the time of flight and even during the first turns around the earth.

If the mission goes to six orbits it would involve a nine-hour flight, compared with the 4½ hours of three-orbit missions. The two U.S. orbital flights so far have been for three turns.

Drifting Flight
The flight plan will call for considerable drifting flight to conserve fuel for re-entry maneuvering.

If the flight goes to five or six orbits it would mean landing about 300 miles northeast of Midway Island in the Pacific Ocean, although the space craft would be launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla. That is because of the rotation of the earth during the extra flight time.

A four-orbit mission would bring the craft down about 200 miles east of Midway.

Landing Points
Landing points for one, two or three orbits would remain the same as in earlier Mercury-Atlas missions, off the southeastern coast of the United States.

In making the announcement, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration official said: "We believe that another three-orbit mission will increase considerably our growing knowledge of space flight. Anything more than three orbits should be considered a bonus."

The NASA official said astronaut L. Gordon Cooper will serve as backup pilot to Schirra.

Annapolis Graduate
Schirra, a Navy lieutenant commander, is a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, is married and has two children. He is a native of New Jersey.

The selection of Schirra and the planning for six orbits had been reported earlier by the San Diego Union in a copyrighted story from Washington for Wednesday editions.

Selection of the primary and secondary astronauts and the decision to extend the mission followed nearly a month's study by NASA on the Malcolm Scott Carpenter flight, the Union said.

Clerk Attends Meeting

CLINTONVILLE.—City Clerk Lloyd Eggleston is attending a meeting of city and finance officers today through Friday at Rhinelander, sponsored by the League of Municipalities.

Federal Inspector Arrives To Check Jail Conditions

A federal report on conditions in the Outagamie County jail will be forthcoming in about three weeks, a federal inspector estimated today.

Carl Taedter, Omaha, Neb., an inspector for the U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Prisons, arrived in Appleton today to inspect the county jail facilities and to forward the report of his findings to Washington, D. C.

Federal Prisoners
Taedter said the object of his inspection is to determine if the facilities are adequate to confine federal prisoners.

"The inspector would not comment on conditions he discovered in his short tour today, preferring, he said, to allow a complete written report which will be sent to Sheriff Robert Heinritz, speak for itself. Taedter said the federal inspections are conducted about once every year.

Taedter said the federal inspection would not be as thorough as the recent state inspection of the Outagamie County jail which declared the county facilities adequate. Taedter said the primary concern of the federal inspection is to see that prisoners are well fed, adequately housed and that a tight security is maintained at all times.

Security System
Sheriff Heinritz said last month that the security system of the county jail was inadequate because of overcrowding in the cell blocks which permits Huber law and maximum security prisoners to be in close contact. The jail this week went into its fourth week at over capacity. A total of 55 prisoners were listed in the jail records.

Tipsy Driver Forfeits Bond

Clintonville Man Arrested in Town Of Larrabee

Raymond C. Thurf, 53, 189 N. 12th St., Clintonville, posted bond of $150 on a charge of drunken driving and he did not appear in court.

Thurf, and his brother, Milton, 45, same address, were arrested Saturday night in the Town of Larrabee by the Waupaca County Sheriff's department. Raymond tested .175 on the drunkometer. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication. Milton forfeited $23 on a charge for a major modification of the of drunkenness.

Paper Industry Can Compete, Executive Says

cent of all U.S. paper products produced in 1961 were exported gave evidence that the U.S. can compete in other countries.

But he called on U.S. producers to stop treating export business as "in and out" business and to emphasize quality, marketing and service needs of foreign markets.

The "almost inexhaustible" supply of wood, well located geographically, augments the ability of U.S. paper manufacturers to compete, he said.

Living Standards
Adams pointed out that the standard of living in western European nations is rising and that paper sales will rise with that standard. The Western European customer would benefit if tariff negotiations resulted in direct competition between U.S. and Scandinavian paper producers, who now supply most of the needs of Western Europe.

Adams felt it necessary that 45, same address, were arrested Saturday night in the Town of Larrabee by the Waupaca County Sheriff's department. Raymond tested .175 on the drunkometer. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication. Milton forfeited $23 on a charge for a major modification of the of drunkenness.

Appleton Ramp To Cost About $308,857

date before the July 18 council meeting.

The contracts cannot be signed until the money is provided, and construction is scheduled to start late in July. If work begins on time it is anticipated the ramp can be completed by Thanksgiving so that it will be open for the Christmas shopping season.

Although the cost of the ramp is supposed to be moderate because the city already owns the land on which it is to be built, there are two ways of figuring the per stall costs.

There will be 256 stalls in the ramp, but only about 132 of them will provide new off-street parking. The city lot, where the ramp will be built, already accommodates about 124 cars.

Costs Differ
If the cost of the ramp is divided by total stalls the cost per stall is $1,206. If the cost is divided only by the new parking the per stall cost comes to $2,340, or almost twice as much.

It also will be possible to figure the per stall costs two ways for the second proposed ramp, to be built on the two city lots bounded by Washington, Morrison and Franklin streets.

The split level ramp proposed for that location will accommodate about 400 cars. The two lots now have room for 187.

Plans Being Drawn
Preliminary plans for that ramp, estimated to cost about $660,000, have not been completed. It is not known when plans will be ready, or when bids can be taken. Construction is supposed to start early next year.

How that ramp will be financed has not entered into any of the official discussions thus far.

Alcoholism in Women Poses Its Own Special Problems

Feminine Drinker Must Contend With Familiar Double Standard

EDITOR'S NOTE—The medical knows her way around. She downs view that alcoholism is a disease, a stinging shot of whisky every is widespread among the general morning to face getting up, and public. But there's a subtle qualification: snatches periodic pickups during cation. Through habit, or tradition the day. "I can always cut it out or the eternal double standard, the if I think it's getting the upper disease in the eyes of the public band," she insists.

These three women — women woman than a man. This and other special problems of the next door neighbors, even your wife—are alcoholics. Three out of how many? Some experts estimate there are one million women alcoholics. Others say perhaps 2½ million, about the same as for men.

Ratio Equal Dr. Marvin Block, chairman of the American Medical Association Committee on Alcoholism, thinks stays in her bedroom with formid- the ratio between men and women able "headaches." Her grown chil- could be about 50-50. He says the dren and devoted husband urge currently accepted ratio of one to see a doctor. She gently woman to five men is very mis- but firmly refuses. The low figure refers pri- marily to clinic patients, and split-level house in the suburbs women are much less likely to with three small children and a seek help in public for a problem husband who doesn't like to come they, or their families, try to hide home anymore. Unkempt house, from the world.

A spokesman for Alcoholics Anonymous, which does not break down its attendance figures according to sex, says, however, that more and more women are now attending its meetings.

"It's had enough to see a man drunk—but a woman!" This is an American proverb H. L. Mencken traced back to 1907. But it sums up the double standard attitude prevailing today.

Mass Opinion Wrong The medical view that alcoholism is a disease—and should be treated as a disease—hasn't overcome the mass opinion that problem drinking in women can be equated with vice and moral turpitude.

Yet it's not the blowsy slatterns who make up the bulk of women alcoholics. A recent study shows only three per cent of all alcoholics are derelicts. Alcoholism in women cuts across social, age and economic strata, with the average woman alcoholic of better than average intelligence and income. Why is the number of women who drink compulsively apparently increasing?

Drinking at Home For one thing, drinking has been moved to the home from the saloon — where, you'll recall, it was, "Daddy, dear daddy, come home with me now," never momentary.

Now, predinner cocktails are an evening ritual in which the wife joins. At parties the good hostess is one who keeps each glass filled with doubles, her own included. And to keep terribly gay, she can slip herself extras in the kitchen while her husband tends bar.

Anthropologist Dr. Margaret Mead points to the mass movement to cities and suburbs as a contributing factor.

Gets Lonely A woman brought up in a community having social and religious sanctions against liquor, where "good women and ladies don't drink," moves to a larger, less protected, more sophisticated environment. She gets lonely.

When her husband, usually a commuter, makes it home, he wants a few cocktails to unwind. Tentatively she joins him.

As times goes by, alcohol becomes her comfort, a way to pass

Must Admit Addiction Most women could be helped if they'd admit their addiction and accept treatment for it, says Dr. Aedgewick Mead of the California Rehabilitation Center at Vallejo.

"Of course you don't begin by just asking the lady if she is an alcoholic," he points out. "This will only get you injured innocence." Most women can summon up at least one good reason why they're not alcoholics.

Drinks When Tense "I never drink in the morning. I only drink sherry. I never have more than two drinks in the evening. I don't drink at all at par-drawn against the afternoon sun-ties. I only drink when I'm tense."

Such self-delusion, which stands in the way of treatment, is often encouraged by the husband, as-coholics, says women often drink summing he's sticking around. His to escape the tensions resulting pride simply won't let him admit from their entrance into the his wife is a lush. Certainly the man's world of business—tensions little woman he married isn't unknown when their place was emotionally disturbed enough to only in the home, or when they need medical help or psychother-
